This weekend 45 years ago Geoff Hunt won the last of his four World Open titles – having started with the first played in 1976. He won the 1980 edition on home soil in Adelaide, beating Qamar Zaman 9-0 9-3 9-3. Having beaten Mohibullah Khan in 1976, Zaman was his final opponent for the next three - 1977/79/80, it was not held in 1978.

The 24th Annual General Meeting of the World Squash Federation in Guernsey unanimously re-elected HRH Prince Imran (Malaysia) as President for a third term. The 3 Vice-Presidents of the Federation Susie Simcock (New Zealand), Bob Finch (Australia) and Philip van der Ven (Netherlands) were also returned for further 2 year terms.

The meeting voted to increase the maximum number of teams allowed to compete in World Championships from 24 to 32 and restructured the format to allow the top 16 teams to be seeded into potential winning positions. In future, specialist seeding committees will be utilised to place teams in the draw, overcoming the seeding problems which disrupted the Men's Championship in Karachi last year. Prince Imran said: "The dramatic growth of Squash in Africa and South America has placed enormous pressure on the WSF to admit more nations to our Team Championships. The welcome and overwhelming support for our motion to increase to 32 teams reflects the increased voting power of these newer Squash nations."

Two contested bids for future championships were decided when Egypt won the right to host the 1996 World Junior Men's event and Malaysia defeated the Netherlands in the ballot for the 1997 Men's World Open & World Team Championships.

The meeting reconfirmed that the Federation's most important objective is to gain entry to the Olympic programme and committed maximum efforts to the campaign to be present in Sydney in the year 2000.

1992 was a key year for South African squash. South Africa had voluntarily suspended its membership of the world body in the interest of unity of the Federation and to support squash's Olympic aspirations, but on 21 February 1992 a unified Squash South Africa was created. Three months later on 29 May the country was re-admitted to the ISRF (now WSF). Then, in August that year it sent a team to Hong Kong to participate in the men's World Juniors to end the hiatus. Here is that World Junior 1992 squad. Squash South AfricaWorld Squash Federation

IAN YEATES
At the comparatively young age of 22 years Ian is competing in his second U.S.R. World Title. By profession a school teacher he learnt his squash in Bowral where his parents own a centre. He has represented his State of New South Wales since 1973 for only as a junior and more recently in the senior team at the National Titles. In 1975 Ian won the Australian Junior Title and his transition to senior ranks was so rapid that two years later he represented Australia in Canada. To gain necessary experience he competed in this year's British Amateur. Ian was New South Wales champion in 1977 and 1978.

ROSS THORNE
At 21 years of age Ross is the most recent player to wear an Australian uniform. His magnificent performance at the recent National Titles in Perth lifted Ross from 8th to 4th ranked Australia. He spent his childhood in this year his double performance by some degree by his participation in events in the United Kingdom and the Continent. He has represented Queensland since 1975 and the last two years in the Senior Team. This year he represented with the Brisbane Club, one of the sponsors for the Stellar World Teams Event.

FRANK DONNELLY
Now 25 years of age Frank has come a long way since he represented his country under 23 years age in the Commonwealth event in 1975. He won a Commonwealth title in the same year and was runner up in the same year. He won the Queensland Junior and was runner up in the National in 1976. He won the Australian under 23 title. Frank has won the world title in the men's team since 1976 and 1978 and 1979.

The World Doubles were first played in 1997 (details here: <https://www.squashlibrary.info/world-championships>), but in March 1972 'The Invitation World Doubles Championships' were played in England. Staged at the Lansdowne Club in London and West Surrey SRC, they were an initiative from Mike Corby Promotions, with Corby teaming up with Jonah Barrington the home side. Geoff Hunt and Ken Hiscoe were the Australian pair, Gogi Alauddin and Hiddy Jahan fronted for Pakistan, and Mo Asran and Abdelfattah Aboutaleb the Egyptian pairing. The finishing positions: 1st Australia, 2nd Egypt, 3rd Pakistan, 4th GB. Squash Library has been seeking out past World Masters results to add to www.squashinfo.com on behalf of WSF. Anybody wanting to see past results can do so generally from the last 16 round for each age group for every year. However, there are still some results missing so this is an appeal to send them to me: andrew@squashlibrary.info if you have them please. Specifically, for 1993 (Edinburgh) and 2006 (Cape Town), only the quarter finals onwards have been added, so last 16 round results would be welcomed. But the real priority is 1995 (Melbourne) where only the final results have been sourced. Any and all missing results welcomed, please.

When the World titles are decided today, there will be debut winners if Mostafa Asal and Hania El Hammamy prevail. However, in the two all-Egyptian finals, an eighth win for Nour ElSherbini would take her alongside current title record holder Nicol David (MAS). Meanwhile, a fifth crown for Ali Farag would move him ahead of fellow Egyptian Amr Shabana and Australian Geoff Hunt into solo third spot on the all-time list. Here are the finalists heads-to-heads produced by Howard Harding's www.squashinfo.com as done as a daily media service for major events. The second men's World Open in 1977 was the first stand-alone event - the inaugural title the year before being added for the British Open winner. Originally scheduled to take place in Sydney, it was relocated to another Australian city – Adelaide. Played October 11 to 22 at the Brahma Lodge Squash Centre, Uniroyal sponsored the event with AS40,000 (£26,000) in prize money - the richest offered in the history of squash at that point. Last round here, full results at <https://www.squashinfo.com/events/1025-mens-world-open-1977>. The Men's World Open was first played in 1976, but an oddly titled 'A World Open Event' took place two years earlier at the Hunts Squash Courts in Melbourne. The application to use 'World Open' was turned down by the World Federation as they had their own plans to initiate it. The event was a 16 player invitation only, and the late request left some players e.g. Jonah Barrington, unable to attend. (On court world number one Geoff Hunt beat Cam Nancarrow (pic) in an all-Australian final, after they beat Pakistanis Hiddy Jahan and Gogi Alaudin respectively in the semi-finals). At the World Federation AGM in Helsinki in 1991, the ownership of the Men's World Open title was finally resolved after ten years in which PSA (then called ISPA) had managed it - when the ISRF (now WSF) ceding the title to ISPA was agreed by the AGM. The Library full set of WSF AGM minutes is at www.squashlibrary.info/wsf-agm-minutes. World Squash Federation Squash - PSA World Tour

AMENDED MOTION - OFFICERS

"That the ISRF recognises that ownership of the Men's World Open title is vested with the International Squash Players Association on the understanding that:

- i. The ISPA recognises and acknowledges the ISRF's sole and exclusive right to promote and organise World Squash Championships for individuals and teams at senior and junior level for both men and women.
- ii. That in years when the Men's World Open and Men's World Team Championships are to be held together, a combined application is made to both the ISPA and the ISRF by the Host Association, and

- iii. That the ISRF recognises the winner of the Men's World Open as World Champion in the absence of the ISRF not itself organising a World Individual Championship for Men."

- Roger Eady of ISPA confirmed that his Association understood and supported the motion by the Officers.

Ten years ago (Birmingham 2012) saw the first playing of the Men's Over 80 age category of the World Masters. England's Lance Kinder is the holder [pic, centre with, left, Edward Burlingame (USA, silver) and Stanley Fanaroff (RSA, Bronze)] winning in 2018 in Charlottesville, USA when aged 82. Also winner of the British Open Over 80 crown, he has agitated for the introduction of an Over 85 band – so far without success.

Starting squash aged 40 after boxing for the RAF, the late starter rose rapidly, and even a heart attack in his 60s did not slow him down. But an on-court fall means the 86 year old could not defend his title at the World Masters this week. After 2010 for individual events without a team championship the top 8 players play off to decide positions 1 to 8. But where there is a following team championship play-offs for 3 to 8 do not take place, to provide a rest day for almost all players.

World Masters follow up: (The full Library World Masters history is at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/world-championships>) Over the years, after the World Masters began with solely Over 45, age bands developed into five year ones from Over 35. When the first stand-alone World Masters event was held in 1991, there were 11 five-year bands (Men's 35+ to 60+, and Women's 35+ to 55+). Now there are 19 bands with Men's expanded up to 80+ and Women's 75+. The Women's first reached Over 70 in 2008, while the men's initiated Over 75 in 2006, with Over 80 first played in Birmingham, England in 2012 (pic). World Squash Federation

Egypt is synonymous with event hosting, currently in El Gouna, but World Federation founder members Egypt had hoped to host their first world championship – the world Amateur Team & Individual – back in 1979. However, while finances were no problem the lack of facilities prevented it. The National Stadium courts (below) would come on stream two years later so the first of the current 13 World Championship stagings in Egypt was the Men's Teams in 1985. Uniquely, the Men's World Open and Team Championships 1987 involved chartering a train! The World Open was played in Birmingham, England, with the team Championship following in London. Because of the numbers involved, rather than hiring a fleet of coaches to transport the team members and officials by coach, an InterCity train was arranged to take everybody from Birmingham to the newly opened Kensington Olympia station, close to the London Championship hotel. The maximum number of national teams who have been able to play in a World Team Championship is 32, more entries meaning regional qualification is required. (Entries & results at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/world-championships>). The maximum has not been exceeded but The Men's has reached 32 on three occasions: 1995 – Cairo, Egypt, 1997 – Petaling Jaya, Malaysia and 2011 – Paderborn, Germany. (The first staging in Melbourne, Australia in 1967 featured six nations).

The Women's highest entry was 26 nations at the 2012 edition in Nimes, France; after also starting with six at the debut event in Birmingham, England in 1979.

P. NUMBERS OF TEAMS AND FORMATS

P1. A maximum of 32 MNFs will qualify to provide teams for a World Team Championship: 17 MNFs (including the Host) will qualify for places on the basis of their final placement in the preceding similar World Team Championship; the remaining 15 places will be allocated to the five WSF Regional Federations as follows:

Africa	2 places
Asia	4 Places
Europe	4 Places
Oceania	1 Place
Pan-America	4 Places

These places will be determined by each Regional Federation either by results from existing Regional Team Championships played between teams of players representing the competing MNFs (preferably three-person teams) or, where this is inappropriate, by separate play-offs within the Region. If any Region fails to take up its quota, the WSF Championships Commission will decide on substitute(s).

The first Men's World Open was not played as a separate event - the World Federation agreed in 1975 that the winner of the 1976 British Open would be awarded the world title too. It was played at the Wembley Squash Centre in London, 31 Jan – 9 Feb 1976, and 2nd seed Australian Geoff Hunt beat 4th ranked Mohibullah Khan 7-9, 9-4, 8-10, 9-2, 9-2 in the final. The 130 minute match was the longest recorded at that point. Two other Pakistanis, Qamar Zaman & Gogi Alauddin were seeded 1 & 3 respectively. When World Championships began the host nation chose which ball would be used. That ended after the Swedish hosts of the World Juniors in 1980 decided on the green 'general use' ball (1980 ad here), much to the shock of players & managers. Since then an 'adopted' World Championship Ball has been designated.

The Dunlop Black. The official SRA ball. Chosen for the World Open in Toronto, it's made its mark in more championships than any other ball in the world.

The Dunlop Green. As close as you can get to championship standard, in a ball that so seldom makes its mark, you can use it on any court in the country.

Although World Squash Championships have been held in all the five global squash regions, the first held in mainland China was the WSF Women's World Team event in 2018. I was held 11 – 16 September in the city of Dalian.

It took place at the Xigang Stadium, home of a squash centre with four permanent all-glass courts made by the Chinese CGG court company.

For the event a further two showcourts were erected in the sport hall – making it unique in using six glass showcourts for an event!

The format of World Team Championships now mean that ordinarily a nation plays a maximum of seven ties. But go back to October 1987 where the entry for the Men's World Team Championship in England was eight more than the previous record, the format meant that 20 nations were given direct access into initial pools, joined by four qualifiers from the two preliminary pools of four teams. The winners went straight through but the second & third in the pools had a playoff tie.

After six team pools, the final stage was 1 – 8, 9 – 16 and 17 – 24 places. This meant that Norway, and Kuwait who succeeded in the preliminary pools after playoffs had played a total of 12 times. And only two players – Norway's Johan Abyholm (left) and Kuwaiti Tariq Al-Oweish, featured in all 12. For the record, Abyholm won 8, while Al-Oweish won 2.

When they won in 1999 / 01, 2005 / 07 and 2004 / 06 respectively the event was only contested every other year so had a gap year before their second. After 2009 it became an annual championship. 11 November 1986 was a squash milestone – being the date when Ross Norman ended Jahangir Khan’s 5year 7month unbeaten spell in the final of the World Open at the Palais Des Sports in Toulouse, France.

But three years earlier was a significant time too. The summer of 1983 was when the New Zealander wrecked his knee landing awkwardly on the edge of the runway at the end of his first ever parachute jump. He reported it as ‘it felt like falling out of a two-storey building’. Having severed one ligament and displaced another it seemed unlikely that he would play again. He did, and the rest, as they say, is history!

ATLAS KHAN

*Aged 21 years.
Atlas Khan is the younger brother of world ranked Moshabbah. He was a member of the Pakistan team that finished 2nd in the World Championships last year. Also he won runner-up in the Pakistan Amateur 1975. Atlas played on the Pakistan team that finished 2nd in the World Open Team Championships in 1976. He was a losing semi-finalist in the Pakistan Championships in 1977.*

DAULAT KHAN

*Aged 19 years.
When he was 10 years old he won the Under-12 Pakistan Championship. Two years later at the age of 12 he was a losing semi-finalist in their National Junior Championships (18 and under) and he was a semi-finalist in the 1976 Pakistan Amateur Championship.*

MAQSOOD AHMED

*Aged 20 years.
Maqsood Ahmed is considered by many to be Pakistan's no. 1 amateur. He is the younger brother of Muhammad Saleem. He was a member of the Pakistan team that finished 2nd in the World Open Team Championships in 1976. He also represented Pakistan in the 5th World Amateur Team Championships in London in 1976. In 1979 and 77 he won the Pakistan Amateur Championship and he recently upset Moshabbah in the finals of the Pakistan Open in 1977.*

The WSF Men's World Team Championship starts in Washington DC tomorrow. The first one was played 52 years ago in Sydney in 1967, and featured six nations playing in a single group.

Australia were the inaugural winners not losing a match, and beating Great Britain to take top spot. Pakistan finished in last place (but did subsequently win the title six times). World Squash Federation WSF Men's World Team Squash Championship

With Egypt seeded one and hot favourites to retain the WSF Men's World Team Championship this month their path towards dominance may be relatively short, but is clear.

It started with the Junior Men's in 1994 when Egypt won their first ever team title led by Ahmed Barada & Omar Elborolossy. (All are biennial and this one has been won six times).

Juniors moved up and after the first Men's won on home ground in 1999, four of these titles have been won in all – but with England proving to be a stumbling block with three of their own during this period.

The same pattern was followed on the female side with the juniors coming first. After a first title in 1999 the girls have eight in total including the last six.

The Egyptian Women's team took their first title in 2008 and have four titles in all.

The Land of The Pharaohs currently hold all four major World Team titles.

So far, no less than 31 countries have hosted WSF World Team Championships Senior & Junior (so not including World Individuals, Masters, Doubles).

The leader-board of events:

New Zealand, 8

Australia, 7

Canada / Egypt / England, all 6

New Zealand is also joint-top the chart of most cities used, along with England & Canada, all 5:

- Canada (Calgary, Edmonton, Niagara, Toronto, Vancouver). First one in 1977, pictured.

- England (Birmingham, Brighton, Guernsey, London, Sheffield)

- New Zealand (Auckland, Christchurch, Hamilton, Palmerston North, Tauranga)

When it comes to the single city that has hosted most of these events, Cairo with 6 tops the list, followed by Chennai with 4. (But if other World / Regional events are added, The Squash Academy in Chennai would be the overall most prolific host city). The Men's World Championship starting today in Qatar is the fifth held there. The first in Doha was in 1998 and saw Canadian Jonathon Power win the title, beating Peter Nicol (Scotland at that point, later England) 15-17, 15-7, 15-9, 15-10.

It was Power's one World title – with Nicol winning his own single one a year later after two R/Ups.

France's Thierry Lincou won the 2nd in Qatar in 2004 and Ramy Ashour took the third and fourth for Egypt in 2012 and 2014. PSA World Champ... See more
