The third and fourth seeds of the women's British Open 2000 were Carol Owens and Linda Charman (Eliriani). Owens would become losing finalist the following year, but couldn't add a British Open title to her career two World Open crowns. PSA Squash Tour

Name: Carol Owens (Australia)
Born: 4 May 1971
Lives: Auckland
World Ranking: 3 (Sept 2000)

Following Michelle Martin's retirement and Susan Flanagan's injury injury, Carol Owens took over the mantle of Australia's top women player with great success, adding the biggest single event of her career on her travels away from home. Owens finished runner-up at the World Grand Prix Finals event in Egypt's top indoor arena in Heliopolis in April. The Melbourne world No.3, one year on in Auckland, New Zealand, went on to reach the final in the year with the team in the quarter-finals but lost year's challenge to the final place to the British Open.

The third and fourth seeds of the men's British Open 2000 were Ahmed Barada and Simon Parke. Neither would make a British Open final during their successful careers. Indeed, none of the top four seeds made the semi-finals that year. PSA Squash Tour

Name: Ahmed Barada (Egypt)
Born: 25 April 1977
Lives: Cairo
World Ranking: 3 (Sept 2000)

Ahmed Barada is a superstar in his home country, Egypt, where squash is one of the nation's most popular sports. After reaching a career high world No.2 in December 1998, the 23-year-old from Cairo reached four PSA Tour finals the following year and beat Peter Nicol to claim the Heliopolis Open title in his home town in November. Tragically struck this year when he was abroad in March, he was back on court ten weeks later and reached the last four of the Super Series Finals, then in August made it through to the final of the Al Arnam International in Egypt.

25 years ago this month the 2000 British Open was played in Birmingham. This week the Library will feature the player profiles from the programme. (Go to <https://www.squashlibrary.info/british-open> for the British Open factsheet and champions posters, and www.squashinfo.com for full results). Here are the top two men's seeds, two times winner Peter Nicol and Jonathon Power, holder, but neither would be 2000 finalists. with the rest of the men and the top women to come in the next few days. PSA Squash Tour

Name: Peter Nicol (Scotland)
Born: 5 April 1973
Lives: Chingford, London
World Ranking: 1 (September 2000)

Stroke 1

Peter Nicol is a world-class squash player - in which he has already achieved his three consecutive wins on the PSA Tour in October 1998 by winning the Bournemouth of Champions. Unseeded, he defeated a further six titles before winning the World Open trophy in Kuala Lumpur at the end of 1999. December's British Open final in his home town of Aberdeen after suffering from poor preparation.

The 27-year-old Scot celebrated his 25th birthday at the 194 feet square table tennis table in his great-grandfather's house in the British Open final to become Britain's first winner of the title for 25 years. Later in the year he became British Open champion in Malaysia to succeed the men's gold medal in the sport's first ever Commonwealth Games.

The victory over the '99 British Open champion Jonathon Power in this September's Hong Kong Open final not only secured the fourth consecutive straight games victory this year over his arch-rival but moved the London-based left-hander 11.50 ahead of Power in front upper classes. The eye of British Open success also approached his 20th PSA Tour title and his 20th consecutive match victory since February.

PETER NICOL INTERVIEW RESPONSES
Regular breakfast? Fruit like grapes, melon, a couple of bananas and sometimes cereal and TV show water.
Favorite breakfast? Same thing, otherwise I wouldn't eat it every morning.
Favorite music? A Blackwell Records because it showed there was someone else.
Last movie you saw? When the World Was Young.
Favorite movie? None at the moment.
Dress or no dress? Love and wear all sports. Basketball is my favourite.
Favorite TV programme? The football transfer market because it's the best of the best - a bit of a pity nobody plays in exhibitions when I'm not in the world.
Favorite drink? I don't drink alcohol.
Favorite food? I don't eat anything.
Favorite sport? I don't play anything.
Favorite player? I don't know.

Name: Jonathon Power (Canada)
Born: 10 August 1974
Lives: Toronto
World Ranking: 2 (September 2000)

Stroke 2

Canada's Jonathon Power is one of the great stars of world squash, who began his professional career on the PSA Tour in October 1998 by winning the Bournemouth of Champions. Unseeded, he defeated a further six titles before winning the World Open trophy in Kuala Lumpur at the end of 1999. His success was rewarded the following May when he took over the No.1 position in the PSA World Rankings to crown his status as North America's most successful squash player of all time.

The Toronto-based 26-year-old has been plagued by injury this year, conceding his Super Series Finals semi-final after just a single game as a result of ankle and back problems. Born the 41st Avenue International in Etobicoke at the same stage with a knee injury sustained in a clash with Bernard Budge, the British Open champion will arrive at the A&A Centre to turn the tables on his arch-rival Nicol and retain the title he won in Aberdeen.

MERCO PRESENTS THE MOUSSU US OPEN

1985 SQUASH CHAMPIONSHIPS

October 17-20, 1985
Telegraph Hill Club
San Francisco, California

INTERNATIONAL SQUASH PLAYERS ASSOCIATION

Dear Squash Enthusiasts,
On behalf of the ISPA, I would like to say how delighted we are to be playing in the 1985 Moussu U.S. Open. As an Association we recognise the enormous potential for international softball squash in North America particularly now it has been adopted as the official summer game by the U.S.S.R.A.

This event, therefore, is of crucial importance and we count ourselves fortunate that this first major professional softball championship will be in the capable hands of Tom Jones, one of America's leading squash promoters.

As individuals we are all looking forward enormously to playing in San Francisco and to demonstrating to everyone the high entertainment value that we believe softball squash has to offer. Many people have asked whether we mind playing on a court that is a little different in size to that normally used, and to using a scoring system other than that operating in the international game. The quick answer is no. As an Association we are very flexible in our attitudes and would like to feel that we can be progressive in our response to events such as the U.S. Open. It may be that the American system of scoring has much to offer and it is only by testing these things under tournament conditions that proper evaluations can be made.

Our hope of course, is that the U.S. Open will be the first of many major events in the United States and that U.S. tournaments will eventually form a significant part of a World Grand Prix.

Our sincere thanks to Tom Jones and all who have made this event possible.
Greg Pollard,
Chairman of the International Squash Players Association

According to the www.squashinfo.com data trove, when India's Joshna Chinappa (pic) won the Japan Open last weekend she claimed her first PSA Tour title for over 10 years - after the NSCI Open in September 2015. Quite a PSA Tour title gap, a contender for longest ever surely, though the 39-year-old did win Asian and Doubles titles in the interim. Representative matches for England / Great Britain began in 1923 for men and 1933 for women. There is now a full list of past and present internationals on the England Squash website, compiled for them by Squash Library. See all the names from the start at <https://www.englishsquash.com/hof>

One of the first women inductees in 1933 was Cicely Fenwick, who had won the British Open in 1925, 26 and 31, and was runner up in 1928 & 30. On the men's side, Victor Cazalet was capped in 1923. He won the British Amateur in 1925, 27, 29 & 30, as well as being runner up in 1926 & 28. Both pictured. England Squash

This month ten years ago Egyptian Raneem El Welily ended Nicol David's unprecedented nine-year run as the uninterrupted World No.1 by topping the September 2015 PSA Women's World Rankings – becoming the first Egyptian female star in any sport to be crowned No.1. El Welily became the 13th person ever to hold the No.1 ranking after bringing Malaysian David's 109-month reign as World No.1, which began in August 2006, to an end. The Netsuite Open in San Francisco began in 2011. Played on an outside showcourt, the 2017 poster referenced this and showed the site at Justin Herman Plaza. (This copy, signed by some players, was donated to the Library archive by referee Mike Riley).

Following on from the Channel Islands producing players such as Gavin Dupre and John LeLievre, two top girls from Guernsey emerged. This profile from the Daily Mail event programme in 1988 came a year before Martine Le Moignan won the World Open and Lisa Opie took the British Open title in 1991. World Squash Federation PSA Squash Tour England Squash

PLAYERS FROM THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

CONSIDERING the small area, and small population of the Channel Islands the number of good squash players to emerge has been immense. One Guernsey man Ray Hebour, was responsible for the development of most of the players. Reg had never played squash before, but as a maths teacher at Elizabeth College he had an interest in working out how to best use the angles on a court. He took one of his young pupils, John LeLievre, who was originally from Jersey, to King's Club and trained him into a fine young player. Reg realised that he had a top player, but it wasn't until they went over to England and John defeated every junior except Philip Kenyon, that he knew just how successful his mathematical approach had been. John went on to be number twenty five in the world and for many years a regular in the England team.

Reg started to work with other players, once more with successful results and King's Club, became famous as first John's brother Richard LeLievre hit the squash headlines (winning the British U 19 in 1977), followed by Lisa Opie and Martine Le Moignan. Richard won the British junior title at both under sixteen and under nineteen. He has recently returned to Jersey to work in the family business. Both Lisa and Martine have remained in the game making the transition from juniors to seniors with ease. Lisa Opie is currently ranked number two in the world. She has reached two World open and three British Open finals, and she is still only twenty three. On the domestic front Lisa has triumphed in three national championships in 1981, 1983 and 1986. Martine, who despite being ranked number three in the world, has always been slightly in Lisa's shadow, possibly because she is less controversial. She has come very close to taking the British Open title, losing to Susan Devoy in the 1986 final. In 1984 she won the British Closed, a competition which she has made the final five times.

It was Jerseyman, Gavin Dupre who has had most influence on Lisa Opie's senior career, as Lisa spends her summers at Dupre's Hainberg club sharpening up her skills and fitness. Jason Nichole, who features in the Daily Mail Squash International, also makes the annual pilgrimage to train with Dupre, and his recent results show that the trips are very worthwhile.

Other well known names in the squash world, from the Channel Islands are, Mark Roberts (British junior finalist in 1983), Paul Matthews (England junior international) and Simon Gaudson (British Under 14 champion 1978). All from Guernsey. Jersey's Jon Hibbs has produced some good performances lately including a win over Richard LeLievre. The Daily Mail Squash International in Jersey will hopefully introduce many new people to the thrill of squash and kindle a little ambition in the hearts of those already playing the game. It will certainly help to keep the good name of the Channel Islands in world squash.

50 years ago today (18 Aug), the 1975 finals of the Zambia Open took place on the newly opened glass back court at the Nkana Squash Club. The women's final saw Australian top seed Marion Jackman (pic) beat locally based metallurgist Joyce Maycock 3-1, while her husband David Jackman beat local player Steve Hunter 3-2 to take the men's crown. Tennis had a Billy Jean King v Bobby Riggs 'battle of the sexes,' (and indeed a very young Simon Parke played Susan Devoy), but fifty years ago at the Markham Fitness & Racquets Club in Ontario, Canada, squash staged its own version. Hashim Khan, then aged over 60, took on Heather McKay, around 30 years younger. It was played level, best of three games. Hashim took it 2 - 0.

They also played to open the WPSA Championships (pic) where Hashim won 15-5 15-10 10-15 15-12.

In April 1972, six young Swedish players came to England to play the British Junior open, and a match was arranged to coincide with the event at the Wimbledon Squash & Badminton Club. The English SRA stated the initiative as 'The first of its kind. This, we hope, will be the first of many junior representative matches, there being endless possibilities - junior internationals, junior county matches and junior SRA matches at various age levels.'

On this day (14 April) in 1965 Anil Nayar (pic) became the first Indian winner of the men's British Under 19 Open (The 'Drysdale') when he beat English player Warwick Sabey 9-4 9-4 9-2 in the final. His was the third overseas win after Peter Gerlow (DEN) twice in 1961/62, and Sharif Khan (PAK) in 1963. Squash Rackets Federation of India Dansk Squash Forbund England Squash Anil Nayar

In 2023 former GB & England international Peter Verov spearheaded the start of an informal WhatsApp group of aged 60+ players, primarily internationals, from several countries. Since then it has grown to nearly 100 group members. Yesterday approaching 50 came together for a reunion in the Midlands of England for a dinner (along with half taking to the golf course). Also featured were a number of the European Team Championship teams from 1979 and 1980 between Sweden and England, the latter year Sweden winning to break the English stranglehold on it.

England & Sweden: (LtoR) Peter Verov, Bo Boström, Philip Ayton, Mikael Hellström, Stefan Winstrom, Andy Dwyer, Ian Nuttall.

Squash success in Belgium used to be a sisterly affair but now it has become inter-generational! There were sisters Kim & Tine Hannes, and currently Tinne & Nele Gilis-Coll are at the fore. Meanwhile, Katline Cauwels first won their national title aged 15, and this month her daughter Savannah has done exactly the same thing at exactly the same age (they are pictured here). Katline went on to win it four times in total. But she and husband Shaun Moxham were able to watch another double as Savannah's brother Maddox took the Men's title too. A family affair to be sure!

South Africa boasts extensive national doubles activity. Following on from the National titles last weekend (pic), this weekend a Junior Doubles Camp is being held to educate youngsters about doubles.

Double is played across the country; an Inter-provincial Masters Team event is held featuring around 500 players

The SA National Doubles are played on four doubles courts at Country Club Johannesburg, built in 2007, using the lower 33cm (13") tin height, although other events use standard courts and tins. (Scoring is best of 3 games to 11, sudden death at 10 all).

The final of the ISPA (now PSA) 1980 Championship took place at the Gaumont Cinema in Southampton, England, 45 years ago today – the first time an event had been mounted on a theatre stage. A demountable glass-backwall was used so that approximately half of the 2,000 capacity was usable.

Another milestone was that this was the first professional event for Jahangir Khan, who was within two points of winning at 7/7 in the 4th game before losing in five to Hiddy Jahan in the last 16. Qamar Zaman was the eventual winner in a 1h 45m final. (Results below). PSA Squash TourPakistan Squash FederationEngland Squash

The Drysdale Cup, the informal title of the British Under 19 Men's Open, was named after RAC member Dr Theodore Drysdale. He spearheaded the initiation of the event in 1926 but died suddenly shortly afterwards, so his fellow RAC members provided the Drysdale Cup trophy for the event which reaches its centenary next year. Here on the Library website is the full list of finalists: <https://www.squashlibrary.info/general-resources>

F. D. Amr Bey adds the Amateur to his Open title.

EGYPT RETAINS THE AMATEUR SQUASH TITLE: AMR BEY (L.) AND E. SNELL IN FINAL.
The most unexpected final ever seen in the event enabled that remarkable Egyptian player, F. D. Amr Bey to retain his title of Amateur Squash Champion at the Bath Club. He already held the Open title. Amr Bey is the best champion there has ever been and has previously enjoyed since 1929. His opponent in the final, E. Snell, though being 7-9, 9-6, 6-8, made an excellent first appearance in the event and only failed where others must also have been required.

The male Under 19 British Junior Open began in 1925/26 season played for a trophy donated by the squash players of the RAC (left pic), in memory of RAC member Dr Theodore Drysdale who had spearheaded the initiative to support junior squash, then died suddenly. The women's event started in 1948/49 season, initially as an Under 21 championship before moving to Under 19 in 1967/68. Later it was played for a trophy donated by Chris Orriss & Stuart Courtney. EGYPT'S GREAT SPORTSMAN

AMR BEY'S EXAMPLE AND PRECEPT

F. D. Amr Bey returned to Egypt yesterday, and it is unlikely that he will take part in the second half matches of the Bath Club Cup competition. It is hoped that he will play squash rackets again in England next season.

Egypt has not supplied the world with many famous athletes, but in F. D. Amr Bey she has produced a squash rackets player who is, as the French says, "hors concours."

There are practically no games nowadays in which the amateur is better than the professional, with the exception of squash rackets. Amr has not only held the amateur championship for three years—he did not play this year—but holds the open championship, which means that he is better than the best professional, and those who have seen such men as Donald Butcher, of the Conservative Club, and James Dear, of Prince's Club, play, know what this means.

Squash rackets has been frequently described as "great exercise but a poor game." This may be true as regards the ordinary player but not so when Amr Bey goes into court. Some day a better may appear but it is hard to conceive it, for Amr has absolutely everything that one can imagine necessary for the make-up of the ideal player.

WIRE AND WHIPCORD

He weighs barely eight stones, but it is all wire and whipcord. He plays every stroke that every other player has produced and several more entirely of his own. He has been called a "human streak of lightning" and those who have seen him in action do not wonder at it. For so frail a figure, his endurance is marvellous. On the rare occasions on which he is held to a fifth game his bewildered opponent suddenly finds that the little man has increased the pace, already terrific, to such an extent that there is no human reply.

Those who know the game intimately say that Amr, if he had a mind to, could give any amateur seven points out of the nine that make the game. This sounds ridiculous, but I, for one, who have seen him in every important match, believe it to be true.

Apart from his squash rackets wizardry, the game owes a great debt to Amr Bey, for no one has done more for it by example and precept. Always courteous, always supremely modest, his sense of real sportsmanship has set up a standard to which all young players should aspire. Of Amr Bey Egypt, to which country he is proud to belong, can justifiably boast.

Here, on the Library website, <https://www.squashlibrary.info/.../canadian-championships...>, is the programme which included notes about adapting to the international game, profiles of players Brownlee, Maqsood, Lilley, Kvant, Muhammad Saleem, Williams, Broun and Donnelly, along with an article about the first six decades of squash in Ottawa. Squash CanadaPSA Squash Tour

Player profiles
The eight seeds

- BRUCE BROWNLEE
The world's top amateur. Brownlee has devoted the last two years of his life to squash. Extremely fit, he moves with the grace of the Pakistani players. Strong, fast and determined, Brownlee has an all-court game, based on length and stamina. At 21 years of age, Brownlee leads the strong New Zealand contingent. In the last year he has won the British Amateur Championship, and scored an upset in the third round of the British Open by defeating the then 15th ranked professional Kevin Shawcross. Brownlee said after winning the British title last December that he would turn professional following the events in Canada.
- MAQSOOD AHMED
Pakistan's No. 1 amateur is little known outside of his home country and could well be the strongest player in the tournament. According to unconfirmed reports, Ahmed beat both Malaysian Kham and Qamar Zaman, Pakistan's top professionals, in a recent tournament in Pakistan. Ahmed, who is 20, has won the Pakistan amateur title for the past two years. His game is based on fitness and speed.
- MURRAY LILLEY
Possibly the most determined player in international squash and like fellow New Zealander Brownlee, incredibly fit. One of the game's most formidable retrievers. He never gives up. Now 30, Lilley was runner-up last year in the British Amateur Championships and winner of the 1977 Scandinavian Open. Works as a real estate salesman.
- LARS KVANT
Undisputed leader of the rapidly developing Swedish squad Kvant's game is based on fitness. A good runner, Kvant, 22, played to Sweden in the European team championships in 1975, 1976 and 1977. He reached the semi-finals of the British amateur in 1976 and won the Swedish championship this year.
- MUHAMMAD SALEEM
A left hander who holds his racket high on the handle, Saleem is a leading Pakistan amateur. Now 30, he has been playing top class squash for about 15 years. Saleem won the Pakistan National Championship in 1967 and 1971. He reached the semi-finals of the British Amateur in 1975 and was runner-up in this year's Pakistan Amateur.
- DEAN WILLIAMS
The top-ranked Australian player, Williams is known for his attacking style on court. Williams, 22, was the Australian junior champion in 1964 and has won the Danish, Finnish and Scottish amateur titles. He was runner-up in the 1977 South African championships.
- HOWARD BROUN
Until this year Broun was New Zealand's top player and he continues to be a close third to Brownlee and Lilley. The 1976 New Zealand Amateur Champion, Broun, age 29, is a real estate agent. At one time he played Davis Cup tennis for New Zealand.
- FRANK DONNELLY
Donnelly, 23, began his squash career almost 10 years ago in the Queensland county city of Bundaberg. He shares with 6th seeded Dean Williams an attacking court style. Donnelly won the Queensland junior title in 1972 and this year won the Queensland amateur title.

70 years ago January 1954 saw the first US Open. It was open to all nationalities, amateur or professional, but the draw was limited to 20 players. British Open champions Mahmoud Karim and Hashim Khan travelled to the University Club in New York to play. Despite hardball being predominant in USA and unfamiliar to them they reached the semis before Egyptian Karim was beaten 3-0 by French American US Amateur champion Henri Salaun. However Hashim beat Diehl Materer 15-12 in the decider before Salaun (pic) took the final 15-7 15-12 15-14. Hashim did master the game though, and later took three US Open titles. The Chichester Festival final 1983, was at the time record breaking – and was only four games. Alan Chalmers has provided a personal recollection (which the Library vividly recalls as I was present too). Here it is: PSA Squash Tour Egyptian Squash Federation - الاتحاد المصري للإسكواش Pakistan Squash Federation

A LATE EVENING IN CHICHESTER

The Patrick International Squash Festival was played in the Chichester Theatre from 21/30 March 1983. Unsuspectingly, we tramped in for the final between Jahangir Khan (Pakistan) and Gamal Awad (Egypt). It started about 8pm in front of a full crowd, my chums and I in the front row. It turned into a monster of attritional squash at the highest level, and it lasted a mighty 2 hours and 45 minutes!

My annotated programme (illustrated) tells the story. In the first game, the first score point came after 7 1/4 minutes; Jahangir forged ahead to 8/1; Gamal fought back grimly and reached 9/9; this next point was a rally of around 500 shots lasting about 5 minutes and ended in a let, but Gamal won it 10/9 after 1 hour 11 minutes!

The front row emptied in a scramble for the bar; I was with Dunlop's Bretton Priestley, fondly remembered as the chap who gave some of us terms on 9 guinea Maxply rackets.

We crept back into our seats half way through the second which Jahangir took 9/5 in 37 minutes, the third 9/7 in 40 minutes, and the 4th 9/2 in 13 minutes.

I don't think Gamal ever fully recovered from the supreme effort he put into this match and died in 2004 aged only 49. He was a bubbly little chap, hugely popular at the Horsham club and was British Amateur Champion twice.

I nearly forgot to mention that the assembled crowd sat down (exhausted) for an excellent dinner round about 11.15 pm!

When four times British Open champion Mahmoud Karim (pic) wrote a foreword to Gerald Pawle's book 'Squash Rackets' in 1951 he explained his match preparation. He said, 'I have no special diet, but one week before a big match I eat only two meals a day – breakfast and dinner at night. On the day of the match I have only one meal – an early breakfast.' He added, 'Often people say to me: "I am surprised that you smoke cigarettes when you are in training." But smoking has never affected me. If your system is used to a habit like that, to give it up suddenly will do more harm than good.' This at a time before the harmful effects of smoking were fully appreciated, of course. The Windy City Open in Chicago celebrated its 40th anniversary this year – the last 25 being directed by John Flanagan. How did it all begin? A WCO timeline

In 1982, Club Pro Jim Maguire and a Tournament Committee got it all started with the first Windy City Open. What started out as a tournament for Club players with a concurrent pro tournament would become one of the largest prize money events on the pro tour featuring prize money parity for men and women.

- 1982-1993 Mark Talbot wins 12 consecutive Windy City Opens!
- 1999 The event switches to the international "soft ball" version of the sport.
- 2004-2007 The glass court is staged in Cathedral Hall for the first time in '84 and stayed there for 4 years with SSA Global as the title sponsor.
- 2005 MetroSquash, Chicago's Urban Squash Program, starts and becomes the official charity partner of the WCO.
- 2008 First women's pro draw in the WCO.
- 2009 SQUASH TV is launched and WCO matches are streamed live across the globe.
- 2010 Liz Kelly-Moore Scholarship recognizing a MetroSquash female student's achievements.
- 2013 Guggenheim Partners' first sponsorship of the WCO.
- 2014 The Men's and Women's Pro Squash Associations merge. The glass court returns and the WCO offers prize money parity and a record-breaking $70K prize purse with Eastlark and Guggenheim Partners as co-title sponsors.
- 2015 The pro event grows so big the amateur event had to move to a separate weekend.
- 2016 Prize money goes to $300K, setting another record-high.
- 2016 The first WCO Women's Leadership Award.
- 2018 Prize money set at $500,000 setting yet another record!
- 2019 Historic $1M prize purse offered for World Championships in Chicago and the WCO begins alternating with the World Championships.
- 2024 40th Anniversary of the WCO and the 50th Anniversary of the Pro Squash Association.

In 1958 the entry of seven Egyptian players was remarked upon, especially after 'Suez' when relations between Egypt with Britain and France were at a low when their government took control of the Suez Canal away from the two European nations.

VISITATION FROM EGYPT

When entries for the Amateur Championship were received from no less than seven Egyptians, there were many who wondered what the reaction of the S.R.A. would be. It was remembered that diplomatic relations between this country and Egypt had not been renewed since "Suez." But it has always been the custom in this country to divorce sport from politics, and everything was done to facilitate the arrival of a team of which some at least were well known over here.

In 1981/2 a 'family' event was initiated in UK. The Debenhams Family Championships featured four categories: father & son, father & daughter, mother & daughter, brother & sister, husband and wife. Sons and daughters needed to be aged U19, brothers and sisters U23, with no age stipulation for husband and wife. It ran for 3 years, but without expanding pairings e.g. father & mistress, wife and lover, to increase entries. Jane & Stuart Courtney (left), won the first husband and ... See more Jahangir Khan is one of only two players who have won a major final without losing a point. He did it at the ISPA Championship in England in 1982, aged 18, when he beat countryman Maqsood Ahmed 9-0 9-0 9-0 in 24 minutes. Maqsood (pictured) only served four times. Meanwhile Heather McKay inflicted the same scoreline on her own countrywoman Beverley Johnson in the final of the British Open 1968. 40 years ago in 1984 in the largest single sponsorship deal in the history of British squash, American Express put up £100,000 to back a pyramid framework linking the existing SRA league network with a new national Premier League.

The structure consisted of three distinct but interconnected tiers. At the base 39 county leagues which attracted some 50,000 players throughout the country. The leading club from the top division of each was eligible to enter the American Express National Challenge. At the top was the creation of the Premier League in which the country's top ten teams competed during the season, featuring all the top national men along with overseas stars.

60 years ago today (12 Feb 1964) an Australian women's group who had come to UK to play the British Open played an sanctioned unofficial test against a British Team, winning 3/2 at the Lansdowne Club in London. (All five matches were played on the famous Bruce Court). This was the first women's match between the two nations.
The visiting number one was Heather Blundell (McKay) who had already won the British Open title twice, pitted against Fran Marshall who had won in 1961 before McKay started her extraordinary run of 16. Marshall had been her opponent in the two finals and had amassed a number of points in her 3/0 defeats, but here could only muster one in 15 minutes of play.

When aged 32, Heather McKay chose this month 50 years ago (1974) to turn professional. The Australian explained why, saying 'One of the main reasons for turning pro was that the British tournaments and especially the British Women's Championship, have become open events. I've done everything I've wanted to in squash. I've broken records [of championship wins] in Australia and Britain, and I wanted to put something back into the game. I can do more of this as a professional.' Squash Australia

After Jonah Barrington turned pro in February 1969 his stellar amateur career was recognised by the award of an MBE in the British Queen's Birthday Honours List in July of that year. British world champions Martine Le Moignan, Peter Nicol, Cassie Jackman, Nick Matthew (OBE) and Laura Massaro have been honoured too. Earlier, 1938 British Open champion Jim Dear had received an MBE too, for combined services to tennis, rackets and squash, as did ten times British Open champion Janet Morgan (Shardlow) and overseas stars such as Heather McKay.

The first New Zealander to reach the top ten of the men's World Rankings was Bruce Brownlee. Coming from a squash playing family, he had swept the board in NZ Junior Champs before he beat Jonny Leslie 3-1 to win the British Amateur in December 1976 (pic). A year later he had turned pro, and a few months later and with a number of wins, including beating Mohibullah Khan, he reached a high of number six in the world. However, he was battling with a severe hip injury termed bilateral osteoarthritis – essentially a round ball in an egg-shaped socket. His arduous training regime had exaggerated the issue, so, in a short career that did also include representing his country in three World Team Championships, he was forced to retire at the age of 26. On 30 March 1983 Jahangir Khan beat Gamal Awad in a then world record 165 minutes – for only four games! The event was the final of the Chichester Festival in England, and saw Egyptian Awad trying to outlast his opponent, at that point unbeaten for two years. Here, at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/general-resources> is the following morning's Times Newspaper report by top squash journalist Richard Eaton, together with the marker's score-sheet (which muddled up the hours!). Jahangir taken to brink by Awad

By Richard Eaton

Jahangir Khan, the world champion, and his loudest rival, Gamal Awad, played a world record for the length of a match, 2 hours and 45 minutes, in the final of the Patrick International Squash Festival at Chichester yesterday. The wonder of it was that it lasted only four games, 9-10, 9-5, 9-7, 9-2. Predictably, Jahangir, the holder, was the winner.

The duration of the however, was nothing other, great surprise, even to those who had listened to Awad's suggestions that he had to bear the player who has since March, 1981. But he played with such patience with such courage, re- such determination, and enough speed in his pos- extra out in a crisis, this was, for the first time, credibility.

A victory was indeed possibility, and that would been a sensation. As it was,

30 years ago in January 1994 Australian Chris Dittmar retired after a great career which would have seen him winning more major trophies had he not been playing when Jahangir Khan and Jansher Khan were in their primes. He had originally damaged a knee while playing Australian Rules Football, and after six operations which kept him out for prolonged periods, it precipitated his retirement at the age of 31. This week, thirty years ago, over two and a half years after his last British Open win, Jahangir Khan returned after injury and seeming retirement to reach the 1993 World Open final. He lost to Jansher Khan, but the following day they joined up to spearhead Pakistan beating Australia in the final to win their sixth World Team title - on his home turf of Karachi. He then officially retired. Squash - PSA World TourWorld Squash FederationPakistan Squash Federation

30 years ago the English Men's National Championship in 1993 (English only rather than British that year), was severely impacted by a stand-off with top players who would not play if the event continued to be designated as a required event for national ranking and eligibility for national team selection, and prize money not increased.

Phil Whitlock, supported by Peter Marshall, negotiated a compromise with the SRA for that year whereby the conditions were removed, and would only be reinstated if the prize money reached a threshold in future years. But the players rejected this, and seventeen players, including Del Harris, Chris Walker, Simon Parke, Jason Nicolle and Marshall didn't play. Whitlock broke ranks with the rest and did so, beating Mark Allen in the final. England Squash

When Egyptian star Mahmoud Karim toured Australia in 1949 the Herald Newspaper in Melbourne report included this about combining squash and tennis, which he also played. 'He explained that he finds the squash touch so much lighter and different to tennis that his squash accuracy is upset if he mixes the two games'.

The report added about the four times British Open champion (1947-50): 'He has not been beaten in a competitive game since 1934, the year he won the Egyptian championship for the first time. That was only a year after he first played the game. He played Amr Bey, who was pre-war champion, many times in non-competitive games, and beat him consistently.' 40 years ago, in May 1983 Ross Norman was in hospital having had a steel traction bar inserted through his fibula. This the result of his first parachute jump at Thraxton Airfield in Hampshire, England where he landed awkwardly and extensively damaged his left knee, including displacing the ligament under his kneecap.

Not only was he able to fully recover, but on 11 November 1986 in Toulouse the New Zealander ended Jahangir Khan's 5y 7m unbeaten run to become World Open champion. Squash New Zealand

Football matches in Qatar now, but thirty years ago squash came to Doha with the December 1992 opening of the Khalifa International Tennis and Squash Complex. Before later expansion it began with a permanent all-glass showcourt with two side courts, along with the Federation office.

The day after the opening the first Qatar Men's International Championship began (Women's events took place 2001-2015), and saw Pakistani Jansher Khan win the first of his five consecutive trophies, beating Chris Dittmar 15-9 14-15 12-15 15-6 15-11. The following four titles were also won against Australians (Rodney Martin, 1; Rodney Eyles, 3). <http://www.squashinfo.com/.../370/mens/qatar-international> for the full results history. England's Kenyon Scoops First Hong Kong Open Title

by Alan Robinson

Englishman Phil Kenyon emerged champion of Hong Kong's first major international squash event last year, when he downed Steve Bowditch of Australia in a hard-hitting final at the Island School Squash Rackets Club on September 15.

After powering to a 9-3 win in the opening game, Kenyon dropped the second 6-9 to the determined Australian, but kept his composure to go on and clinch a 3-1 victory by taking the next two games 9-3, 9-7.

The inaugural Cathay Pacific Hong Kong Open attracted a high-powered list of world ranked players, including seventeen ranked in the top thirty. The result was a fiercely competitive event, with even recognised players having to battle their way through the qualifiers to gain entry to the lucrative main draw.

With the Open taking place in September, at the start of the world circuit season, surprises were always on the cards, as competitors were keen to make an early mark on the world rankings list. That meant plenty of high tension squash, and no shortage of incidents and upsets.

Both winner Kenyon, seeded 8, and runner-up Steve Bowditch, seeded 11, belied their seedings and world rankings with well-earned wins against higher ranked players.

Kenyon had enjoyed a smooth semi-final passage over 6th seeded Jan-Liif Soderberg, taking the match 9-5, 9-1, 9-5, although the Swede had looked very sharp and fit in previous games. But previously Kenyon needed all his talent in his quarter-final match against tournament favourite Maqsood Ahmed of Pakistan, seeded 2nd.

Going into the match as underdog, Kenyon produced a brilliant mixture of power and disguise to master the touch and speed of Ahmed, winning a see-saw match 9-2, 4-9, 9-7, 5-9, 9-0.

Bowditch had to use his fighting qualities as well as his amazing array of shots to reach the final. Twice he came back from a two game deficit to win matches.

Against fellow Australian Dean Williams, a real crowd pleaser with his entertaining style who looked in good form as he took a two game advantage in the semi-final, Bowditch staged a remarkable comeback.

His touch returned and Williams ran out of steam, the final score being 3-9, 6-9, 9-5, 9-1, 9-0.

Earlier, Bowditch had beaten unseeded Danny Lee, the conqueror of top seed Qamar Zaman in the previous round, and another Australian Glen Brumby, 5th seed, 5-9, 1-9, 9-7, 9-2, 10-8.

In other memorable episodes Singapore's Peter Hill posted a magnificent win over 10th seeded Jamie Hickox of England, winning 3-1 after being a game and 1-6 down. Chris Robertson, unseeded but World Junior Champion, had an excellent 3-0 win over 4th seed Gamal Awad of Egypt.

Dean Williams produced some unforgettable plays in winning the third-place play-off. He played "exhibition squash" which had the gallery enthralled and gasping in disbelief. Soderberg, scratching his head at times, nonetheless contributed fully to a match which everyone wished could go on all night.

Soderberg, heading a strong Swedish contingent, looked very fit and fast about the court, retrieving seemingly impossible shots time and time again.

Kent Li of Hongkong, twice local champion, made history by becoming the first Hongkong player to take a game from a world ranked player, before losing to Bowditch 3-1.

For the local officials and organisers the event proved a valuable experience, and much important groundwork was laid for this year and the future, when we can confidently expect to see world class squash on a regular basis in Hong Kong.

The 25th Monte Carlo Women's Classic is taking place in Monaco this week. The event history at www.squashinfo.com shows that Sarah Fitz-Gerald (AUS) beat Cassie Jackman (ENG) 3-1 in the final final in 1996, the players being presented with their trophies by HRH Prince Albert. Back row: Patrick Rubino (club manager), Sarah Fitz-Gerald, Prince Albert, Liz Irving (semi-finalist), Bruno Fissore (Federation President). Front: Cassie Jackman, Michelle Martin (semi-finalist), Cheryl Mace (Committee).

Yesterday was the actual centenary of the Bath Club Cup in London. The day after – 2 November 1922, the Times newspaper reported the milestone in this way:

From "The Times" - Thursday 2nd November 1922 :-

A start in the new and particularly interesting squash rackets competition was made at the Bath Club yesterday, where the Bath Club beat the RAF Club by three matches to none.

Lord's, Prince's Club, Queen's Club, the Bath Club, the Royal Automobile Club and the RAF Club have all entered for this competition and each club will play every other in home-and-home matches. Three players will represent each club in every match and the rules allow for the playing of any member of a club in any match, so that no teams need be "declared", but no players may represent more than one club in the competition. The rules of the club at which the match is played obtain there and so also does the ball which is generally in use at the club. There are big differences in the size, pace and make of the different courts and the pace and weights of the balls also differ considerably. There is a scheme on foot to standardise the squash ball, but this is, in the writer's opinion, a mistake. Squash rackets is not a standard game and can never be one. Where there is as much as one wall available a species of squash rackets can be played and produce both the "sweat" which, to many, is the first reason of the game and some amusement.

The Elstree game without a back wall is perhaps the best of all "squash", though comparatively few have played it. The Bath Club ball, which has a hole in it, would not suit the big court at Lord's, though it has its votaries even there. The pace, and particularly the jump, of the ball favour the "home" club even more than the difference in size and construction of the different courts. Some of the competitors say that it means half the game, but this is not quite true in the highest class of even amateur squash. If so, to play away will prove even more deadly for one of the squash rackets clubs than the association football clubs.

As was very appropriate, the first match in the competition was played at the Bath Club, for that club has given a challenge cup to be played for annually and to remain in the possession of the winner between competitions. In all there will be thirty matches played this year. The clubs will choose their three players in order of merit, so that the first, second and third "strings" will meet each other in the three personal matches. Each individual match will be the best of three games, so that at the end of a meeting the maximum points of either match will be three. At the end of the competition, of course, the points scored by each club will be added up and that with the largest aggregate will be the winners.

The Lapham Grant Cup being played now at Toronto Cricket Skating and Curling Club marks the Centenary of what may be the oldest continuing squash team event. The Lapham Cup, a men's team competition played between USA and Canada, began in 1922.

Seemingly an informal match between some players from the two countries in Greenwich, Connecticut in 1921 prompted American Henry C. Lapham to offer to put up a trophy (now valued at over $50,000) when it was suggested that it become an annual match, and the Lapham Cup was born.

The first one took place in Boston, USA and was won by USA 11-2. Since then between five and fifteen players have contested the trophy, depending upon availability, each year. Ordinarily, the top five players for each team were picked from their rankings, with another five because of their involvement in the game and then a quota for their sociability!

The Grant element arrived in 1944 when Canadian Alastair Grant donated a trophy for a doubles event played along the same lines as the 'Lapham' with up to eleven pairs participating.

Women's singles & Doubles matches were added in 1999, Men's Over 65 in 2001.

The events, held at the same time and venue, are hosted in alternate years by Canada and the United States. From 2000, all singles matches have been played with the international ball. Squash CanadaUS SQUASH

The US Open, taking place this week, was a 'hardball' event until it moved to 'softball' in 1985, with the first being held at New Year 1954. Here is Edwin H Bigelow's report from the British SRA Handbook 1954/5, indicating that Hashim Khan adapted to hardball enough to reach the final before going down to top American Henri Salama.

Two years after the first 'softball' Nationals were played in USA, the International game arrived at the US Open in 1985, when they were played on converted racquetball courts at the Telegraph Hill Club in San Francisco. (Conversions were 1ft narrower than the standard 21ft international size), PAR and 17" tins were experimentally used by promoter Tom Jones.

The inaugural winner was Jahangir Khan, the Pakistani star beating New Zealand's Ross Norman 15-4, 15-5, 15-8. U.S. Open SquashUS SQUASH

The First United States Open Championship
By Edwin H. Bigelow.

THE first American national open squash rackets single championship was held over the new year's week-end of 1954 at the University Club, New York City. It is the first such championship to be held with the sponsorship of the United States Squash Racquets Association. It is the only tournament so sponsored in which any player may participate, amateur or professional, American or foreign, club member or independent, with or without specific invitation, with no restriction on his entry other than that he possess the necessary playing ability to compete adequately in a field of the world's top squash players. All other squash tournaments in the U.S.A. have qualifications for participants. It differs from such an open tournament in unique and not in conflict with any other squash tournament.

An "open" was held in the Boston area in 1935. The winner was German Glidden III, then a Harvard University undergraduate, who defeated Jack Barnaby, the present Harvard coach in the final. Glidden had beaten Jack Samuels, the then leading professional player, in a semi-final match. Open tournaments were held in Boston, then by Henri Salama and Roger Baker. These Boston "opens" however, were not on a national scope nor nationally sponsored.

This first open championship was not, as some might think, to determine whether professional players are better than amateurs or whether amateurs are better than professionals. Whether a player is a professional or amateur, a foreigner or an American, is of little consequence. No distinction in the entry list was made or intended. We sought only a fair field and an occasional many entrants who seek out the one best squash player who was available, regardless of his location, residence, nationality, colour, creed or club affiliation.

Twenty entries were accepted and seventeen additional ones were retained. Previous disqualification had been voiced against two between amateur and professional players. The restriction was made over a fair field. The championship indicated entries from the U.S.A., Canada, Egypt, England, Pakistan, Scotland and South Africa.

Henri Salama, U.S.A. amateur, was the winner, beating Hashim Khan, Pakistan, in a three-game final. Khan had beaten the then Canadian amateur champion, Ernest Howard, and Edith Moore, U.S. amateurs, and Salama, two. Of particular interest was the showing made by Khan and Mahmoud Karim, the American game, quite unfamiliar to them both. Karim was beaten by Salama, but had beaten Harry Cousins, the American amateur singles champion in 1952, and Charles Branson, the American amateur champion in 1947.

First round: Ernest Howard (Canada) beat James J. Tully (U.S.A.), 15-11, 15-8, 15-11. Hashim Khan (Pakistan) beat Tom Brice (U.S.A.), 15-4, 15-10, 15-8. *Dr. G. The Men's 'Home Internationals' began in 1939, with Wales joining England, Ireland & Scotland in 1947. The Women's started in 1947 too. Initially they were individual matches. The first time they all came together for a weekend was January 1974 in Warrington, and was last played in 1991. (England won the first weekend in 1974 - pictures 1 to 4: Mike Thurgur, Philip Ayton, John Easter, Paul Millman). Junior editions began with Under 19s in 1981, with Under 16s added two years later. They were also discontinued, but more recently Under 13 and 15 events have been held, with France participating too. As for Masters, Men's Over 45 was the starting point in 1980, and with the addition of Over 75s in 2016 all five year bands from 35 - 75 are included. The Women's version began in 1997 and spans 35 - 55 currently, with Over 60s intended for the cancelled 2020 staging.

To end Library rankings week, the last decade – the January 2010 top twenties. While almost all of the players from ten years ago had now retired, Mohamed Elshorbagy, just turning nineteen, was on the rise, and the first group of Egyptian women had arrived during the decade in a list headed by dominant Nicol David. Library Rankings Week: Day 1:
When ISPA (later PSA) Men's rankings began from 1974 initially they were published quarterly (Feb, May, Aug, Nov). They were called seeding lists and intended to be used as the basis for event seedings during the period. (However, the orders were not mandatory and could be varied as well as non-ISPA members inserted by event organisers). There was one World Ranking list published on 1 February each year.
From 1988 to 1997 they came out every two months, before moving to monthly from 1998. WISPA Women's were every two months from 1984 to 2001 when they became monthly. As of today, rankings start being produced weekly. (See old listings at www.squashinfo.com). Squash - PSA World Tour

Englishman Victor Cazalet (pic) travelled to Cairo to play exhibition matches in 1935 after winning the USA & Canadian Opens some years earlier. At the end of a session a youngster asked Cazalet if he could play him. Yes was the answer and Cazalet went on to lose. He pointed at the young man and said that he would become World Champion. This was Mahmoud El Karim who went on to win the British Open four times (1947 - 1950)!

A bombshell was dropped in September 1971 with the announcement that Australians Geoff Hunt and Ken Hiscoe (left) had decided to turn professional. The Australian Federation had opposed a motion that amateur status be abolished that year – unsurprising as Hunt & Hiscoe had been two of the three players who had won the first three World Team Championships (1967, 69, 71) and Hunt had won the three accompanying world individual titles.

A quote at the time: 'Geoff Hunt is young enough to make a big killing from the professional game and then to return to his profession as a scientific chemist, but for Ken Hiscoe it is much more of a gamble. He is by now past his best.....' Squash - PSA World Tour Squash Australia

This article signaled the start of the Harp Lager Championships which ran very successfully in UK for eight years from 1969. While it did not reach the projected numbers a follow up event did. Details of that one tomorrow!

A MAMMOTH SQUASH TOURNAMENT FOR 8,000 PLAYERS! (April 1969)

That is the hope of Harp Lager who are planning to run a nationwide event which will take the whole season to get through. While this may pose nightmare problems for the organisers, it should prove enjoyable for the players who will get the opportunity of meeting new opponents — it is surprising how many have their own opponent against whom they play week in and week out. A tournament of this size depends on co-operation from the players such as quickly reporting the results of their matches. It is understood that the country will be divided into 16 areas. Given a full entry of 8,000 this would result in 500 players per area, but unless a limit is enforced on the entry from the more populated parts of the country it would be reasonable to expect an entry in excess of that figure in, say, the South-Eastern area. An entry of 500 would mean nine rounds to find the area winners and with three weeks between the completion of each round this would take up over 6 months — and then the 18 winners have to fight it out!

But whatever the difficulties entailed, the conception is a fine one which can do nothing but good for the game. It is hoped that appropriate coverage of the tournament will be forthcoming both from the national as well as the local press. There are still a large number of people in the country whose knowledge of squash is confined to a soft drink and it would only be reasonable to express the hope that at the end of this tournament more people will know about the game — and also about Harp Lager.

Who will enter the tournament? At present it is the idea of the organisers that anyone can enter including the country's leading amateurs. It is felt that this would be a mistake. This should be an event for the club player, not for the international player and a large number of moderate performers would be scared out of entering if they thought that there was a chance of meeting swift ignominious extermination at the hands of an international or even a leading county player. If then this is to be a tournament for the moderate performer, he should be encouraged by having the tournament to himself. In other sports similar events have been the means of bringing to light unknown but talented players who have gone on from success in this type of event to win the highest honours in the game.

Harp Lager is to be congratulated on being the first company to sponsor a really worthwhile squash event which will mean a great deal to the game.

Play it Cool
Have a Harp.

The February 2016 PSA Women's Rankings saw Australian Rachael Grinham end a remarkable 223 month unbroken run in the Women's Top Twenty according to her <http://squashinfo.com> profile. The then 39 year old Grinham included 16 months in the number one spot during 2004 / 5 and her winning the World Open in 2007. A sparkling span of nearly 20 years from July 1997. Rachael Grinham Squash - PSA World Tour Squash Australia

Following on from the news that Mohamed Elshorbagy is changing his allegiance from Egypt to England, it recalls the last high profile player move, also to England, when Peter Nicol made the move from Scotland in 2001 as covered by the Library in 2020 here. (To see all past categorised Library posts go to www.squashlibrary.info and click on POSTS).

A major furore was created on 17 March 2001 when news that Peter Nicol was moving allegiance from Scotland to England reached the media. Nicol had won Commonwealth Singles Gold in 1998 and the World Open in 1999. He had been based in England for some years, and explained that the move was not about money, but support via the English World Class Performance programme. 'It has been a difficult decision for me to make but I am a professional athlete and believe I am joining the best programme there is in the World'. Under the England banner he reached the 2002 Commonwealth Games Final (losing to Canadian Jonathon Power), and was a member of the England squash which won the Men's World Team Championship in 2005.

England's Kenyon Scoops First Hong Kong Open Title

by Alan Robinson

Englishman Phil Kenyon emerged champion of Hong Kong's first major international squash event last year, when he downed Steve Bowditch of Australia in a hard-hitting final at the Island School Squash Rackets Club on September 15.

After powering to a 9-3 win in the opening game, Kenyon dropped the second 6-9 to the determined Australian, but kept his composure to go on and clinch a 3-1 victory by taking the next two games 9-3, 9-7.

The inaugural Cathay Pacific Hong Kong Open attracted a high-powered list of world ranked players, including seventeen ranked in the top thirty. The result was a fiercely competitive event, with even recognised players having to battle their way through the qualifiers to gain entry to the lucrative main draw.

With the Open taking place in September, at the start of the world circuit season, surprises were always on the cards, as competitors were keen to make an early mark on the world rankings list. That meant plenty of high tension squash, and no shortage of incidents and upsets.

Both winner Kenyon, seeded 8, and runner-up Steve Bowditch, seeded 11, belied their seedings and world rankings with well-earned wins against higher ranked players.

Kenyon had enjoyed a smooth semi-final passage over 6th seeded Jan-Ulf Soderberg, taking the match 9-5, 9-1, 9-5, although the Swede had looked very sharp and fit in previous games. But previously Kenyon needed all his talent in his quarter-final match against tournament favourite Maqsood Ahmed of Pakistan, seeded 2nd.

Going into the match as underdog, Kenyon produced a brilliant mixture of power and disguise to master the touch and speed of Ahmed, winning a see-saw match 9-2, 4-9, 9-7, 5-9, 9-0.

Bowditch had to use his fighting qualities as well as his amazing array of shots to reach the final. Twice he came back from a two game deficit to win matches.

Against fellow Australian Dean Williams, a real crowd pleaser with his entertaining style who looked in good form as he took a two game advantage in the semi-final, Bowditch staged a remarkable comeback.

His touch returned and Williams ran out of steam, the final score being 3-9, 6-9, 9-5, 9-1, 9-0.

Kenyon deftly forces Bowditch in last year's final

Earlier, Bowditch had beaten unseeded Danny Lee, the conqueror of top seed Qamar Zaman in the previous round, and another Australian Glen Brumby, 5th seed, 5-9, 1-9, 9-7, 9-2, 10-8.

In other memorable episodes Singapore's Peter Hill posted a magnificent win over 10th seeded Jamie Hickox of England, winning 3-1 after being a game and 1-6 down. Chris Robertson, unseeded but World Junior Champion, had an excellent 3-0 win over 4th seed Gamal Awad of Egypt.

Dean Williams produced some unforgettable plays in winning the third-place play-off. He played "exhibition squash" which had the gallery enthralled and gasping in disbelief. Soderberg, scratching his head at times, nonetheless contributed fully to a match which everyone wished could go on all night.

Soderberg, heading a strong Swedish contingent, looked very fit and fast about the court, retrieving seemingly impossible shots time and time again.

Kent Li of Hongkong, twice local champion, made history by becoming the first Hongkong player to take a game from a world ranked player, before losing to Bowditch 3-1.

For the local officials and organisers the event proved a valuable experience, and much important groundwork was laid for this year and the future, when we can confidently expect to see world class squash on a regular basis in Hong Kong.

Today in 1951 (11.04.51), Pakistani star Qamar Zaman celebrates his birthday. Born in Quetta, the 'magician', so often in the shadow of Geoff Hunt would have done more than win his many international titles including the British Open in 1975 had the Australian not had the edge.

His stroke-making mesmerised his opponents, his impish humour entertaining crowds; and he can look to four World Open Runner up slots, and being a three time Pakistan squad World Men's Team Championship winner. (Pic: Hunt v Zaman, British Open final 1979)

On this day 54 years ago (16.03.68) Eleonora Sears died. She had become the first US Women's squash champion, at the age of 46 in 1928. She did so having been involved in the formation of the United States Women's Squash Racquets Association that year. She also captained early Wolfe Noel international matches (www.squashlibrary.info/post/wolfe-noel-challenge-cup) in its early years.

Thought to be one of the greatest all-round sportswomen of her era, her achievements included being inducted into the US Tennis Hall of Fame. US SQUASH

45 years ago today (7 March 1977) the National Sporting Club in London held a dinner to honour the career of Jonah Barrington. It was greatly deserved, as not only had he won six British Open titles, but through his strength of personality he had single-handedly led the growth of the sport at the time and since.
(Oddly, the commemorative ashtrays enabled guests to stub their cigarettes on his face!).

On this day in 1980 Jahangir Khan had hoped to be playing in the final of what was the last British Amateur Championship. The previous October, still aged 15, he had swept through the qualification and then the main draw to win the world Amateur title in Melbourne, and was the hot favourite to double up with the British title. However, an eve of event slip while practicing on the Wembley courts led to back muscle damage and withdrawal. Here's the programme preview complete with his signature. (The title went to England's Jonny Leslie who beat Kiwi Ross Norman 9-3, 9-3, 9-4 in the final). Pakistan Squash Federation England Squash

In 2013, the US Open led the charge towards equal prize money for men and women at top level events, with a first equalisation that other 'majors' followed.

"It is a top priority for us to promote opportunities for girls and women to play squash," said Kevin Klipstein, CEO of U.S. Squash (pic).

"Offering equal prize money is one way we are able to help more female squash players compete at the highest level and to their full potential." US SQUASHSquash - PSA World TourWorld Squash Federation

Egyptian Mahmoud Karim who won the first four British Opens played after the end of World War Two said this in 1951. These are not routines that are recommended now!

'On the day of the match I have only one meal – an early breakfast. Often people say to me: I am surprised that you smoke cigarettes when you are in training. But smoking has never affected me. If your system is used to a habit like that, to give it up suddenly will do more harm than good'. British Open SquashEgyptian Squash Federation - الاتحاد المصري للإسكواش

Tour wins by nation, 2001 – 2021. This data supplied by www.squashinfo.com gives a superb indication of how the number of nations who have players winning Tour events has expanded, and how the balance of power has changed. See the lists at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/features>

In 2001 Men's Tour winners came from 13 nations – last year it had exploded to 31. The Women's has shot up similarly, from 9 to 24. The lists also show which nations have come in, dropped out and positions achieved by the success of their players.

(This cover all main Tour levels, while of World Series events in 2021 Egyptian players were dominant, winning six of eight Men's World Series events, and all six of the Women's). Squash - PSA World Tour

Iran's first Men's Open Squash championship took place over half a century ago, debuting in 1969. The first four editions were all won by Englishman Nigel Faulks.
As a sidebar, in the 1972 Iran final Faulks played Mike Hill (ENG) and was down 0/9, 0/9, 0/6 at which stage a local journalist reported saying it was an easy victory to Hill. Faulks at that point realised how to play better on a sweating court and proceeded to win the next three 9/6, 9/0, 9/0. Here are the correction & presentation.

Going into the 8th Men's European Team Championship in Helsinki, Finland in 1980, England were unbeaten. For Sweden it was third time lucky having served notice by reaching the previous two finals, when they won the final 3/2, (a feat they repeated three years later too). The final 1980 scoreline:

Sweden beat England 3 – 2

Lars Kvant beat Andrew Dwyer 9-1 9-7 9-0

Mikael Hellstrom lost Barry O'Connor 8-10 9-6 4-9 0-9

Johan Stockenberg beat David Pearson 9-4 9-7 9-5

Frenchman Greg Gaultier's competitive retirement at the age of 38 (DofB: 23.12.82) ends a sparkling career that included winning the World Championship in November 2015 and three British Open crowns (he was the first French winner), amongst 44 PSA Tour titles from 83 finals. The six times French champion also represented his country at 18 European Team and 10 World Team Championships, amassing 189 caps.

He spent 20 months as world number one (and became the oldest ever in April 2017). The www.squashinfo.com data trove also reports that he boasts both the longest unbroken run in the men's world top 20 AND the top 10 - his 16 years in the 20 (May 2003 - Apr 2019) beating Nick Matthew by 18 months, and 12 years 10 months in the top 10 (Apr 2006 - Jan 2019) overtaking Peter Nicol (12 years 6 months). Leo Au, from Hong Kong, broke the record for the longest professional squash match ever recorded en-route to claiming the ninth PSA World Tour title of his career at the Holtrand Gas City Pro-Am in January 2015 in Canada.

His dramatic semi-final victory was the longest match ever recorded - a mammoth 170-minute encounter (11-6, 4-11, 11-6, 7-11, 16-14) against Canadian Shawn Delierre.

It was a match that eclipsed the previous record set by legendary Pakistani six-time world champion Jahangir Khan, who took 166-minutes to get past Gamal Awad in the 1983 Chichester Festival 9-10, 9-5, 9-7, 9-2. Yes, in four games!

A tour event in a factory staff canteen. Yes, a canteen! It happened in March 1979 after Yorkshire, England company FKI first decided to install a court for their staff, and then thought that the high ceiling would enable them to add 500 seats behind the glass wall. (At the time the company were a dominating force in the UK production of motorway lighting, manufacture of parking meters and car battery chargers).

After early rounds took place at the nearby Queens Club, Halifax... See more

On 31 December 1962, England suffered their first Men's International match defeat after 46 victories. Australia beat them that day at the RAC Club in London, winning 4-1. Number one Ken Hiscoe then became the first Australian winner of the British Amateur in the New Year at the nearby Lansdowne Club. (Geoff Hunt, Kevin Shawcross and Cam Nancarrow later completed the quartet of Aussie winners).

The scoreline:

Australia bt England 4 - 1

Ken Hiscoe bt Jeremy Lyon 9-6 5-9 9-6 9-7

The US Open moved from hardball to softball for the first time in 1985, held at the Telegraph Hill Club in San Francisco, 17 – 20 October. In the programme the ISPA (now PSA) Chairman Greg Pollard commented that 'the Association recognises the enormous potential for international softball in North America' adding 'this event, therefore, is of crucial importance....'

The first holder became Pakistani Jahangir Khan who beat Kiwi Ross Norman 15-4, 15-5, 15-8 in the final.

This week's Scottish Open has a history beginning in 1974 when Aftab Jawaid won it, continuing until 1991 when Jahangir Khan provided a Pakistani bookending beating Australian Chris Dittmar at the Scottish Exhibition Centre in Glasgow.

The next edition took place in 2001, when Peter Nicol, now representing England, went north to Perth to beat another Australian, Stewart Boswell, in the final.

Revived in 2019, Spaniard Edmon Lopez beat Patrick Rooney (ENG) in the final, before Covid intervened.

The Women's event began at the same time as the Men's, and featured three wins by New Zealand's Susan Devoy amongst top international names. Scottish Squash - PSA World Tour

The first Canadian Men's Championship was played on 20 March 1912 at the Montreal Racket Club, won by Kenneth Mackenzie, who beat Peter Mackenzie 12/15, 15/5, 15/12, 15/9 in an all-Montreal final. (Mackenzie secured the title the following year when he beat Arthur J Hills 18/17, 8/15, 10/15, 15/12, 15/11).

This was three years before the Canadian Squash Racquets Association was formed in 1915. The five founding members were the Montreal Racket Club, Toronto Racquet Club, Hamilton Squash Racquets Club, University Club of Toronto, and the Ottawa Squash Racquets Club. The Montreal Racket Club was built in 1889 as a rackets club, with a squash court subsequently added. Squash Canada

In 1981 when Jahangir Khan was aged 17, six times British Open champion Jonah Barrington made this prediction, 'Jahangir Khan will become the best player of all time'.

Ten British Open titles later (and six World Open wins too), nobody can argue that the Pakistani is right up there.

A profile by journalist Dicky Rutnagur quotes another legend Geoff Hunt - who won eight British Open titles himself - who said 'They used to call me the best player ever at my age, but Jahangir is something special, much better than I was at seventeen'.

Sunday prompt. In March 1983 at the Chichester Festival Theatre in England Jahangir Khan (PAK) beat Gamal Awad (EGY) 3 – 1 in the then record breaking 2hr 46 min final of the Chichester International (yes, only four games!). He did so in the probably unique situation of the master camera filming being through the front wall. As can be seen there was no backwall viewing for the event except for the match officials.

South Africa and Great Britain first played representative matches against each other in 1955 and 1957. First the British toured South Africa – the first men's tour outside Europe since the SRA had been formed in 1928 - and then two years later Britain hosted them.

Four tests were played in 1955 in South Africa. South Africa won the first at altitude in Johannesburg 4-1, GB levelled 4-1 in Durban, the hosts won 3-2 in Cape Town and wrapped up the series 3-1 with 3-2 win back in Johannesburg.

The first of three return matches was played before the British Amateur at the Lansdowne Club in London, and won by the home team 3-2. The second and third ties, played in Cardiff and Edinburgh were both won by the British team 5-0.

It also shows that amongst the Australian stars, Chris Dittmar was up against and beaten by Jansher Khan in six finals – and in the seventh thwarted by countryman Chris Robertson. When Ken Hiscoe won the British Amateur in 1963 at the Lansdowne Club in London, he became the first Australian to do so, and only the fourth overseas winner ever. The preceding three were Egyptians Amr Bey and Ibrahim Amin, along with South African Peter Hildick-Smith. Beating Tewfik Shafik (Egy) 9-3, 9-7, 5-9, 9-7 in the final, the champion made the cover of the British Lawn Tennis magazine. Desmond Backhouse lost the final of the British Amateur Championship to Cyril Hamilton 9-7, 9-0, 9-4 in December 1934. Egyptian 6 times winner & holder F D Amr Bey, was unable to defend his title. Backhouse, pictured, received his runner-up medal (bronze) with this letter.

The European Federation accorded the German Federation the right to host the first European Open in 1986. Held 10 -16 March at five clubs before televised finals at RSC Munich, a number of withdrawals blighted the event before New Zealander Ross Norman beat surprise finalist Kelvin Smith (AUS) 9-2, 9-3, 9-4 to take the inaugural title. Since then the title has only cropped up sporadically (1987, 1990, 1992, 2002). The European Squash Federation Deutscher Squash Verband e.V.

by Mike Palmer
The Daily Express

That so many Britons have discovered the pleasure of squash can be traced in part to the extraordinary contribution from one man, Jonah Barrington.

Barrington, a Cornish man born of an Irish father, won the British Open title (ostensibly the world championship until this year's official World Open at Wembley) six times. His run of victories from 1966 to 1975 forever marks him as one of the world's greatest players and when Barrington claimed his first Open he was the first Briton to do so for 28 years.

But Barrington's place in squash goes far beyond impersonal lines in record books. His total application to success has set the supreme example to fire the enthusiasm of the lowliest player; his success a direct inspiration to those entrepreneurs who sparked Britain's squash boom with an explosion of commercial clubs.

Barrington's brand of squash evangelism struck an immediate mass chord of public sympathy and acceptance. The formula was simple, for here was a man forthright, unrelenting in his desire to win. He was and still is one of the fittest men in the world, a fact which enabled him to compensate for an ability judged average by international standards.

And Barrington was successful, oozing confidence; an oddity in a nation accustomed to filling second place. Above all, Barrington could talk, fluently, amusingly, often scathingly, his Zapata style moustache bristling with rebel fervour as he frequently harangued

Australian squash champion in 1937, Mervyn Weston, reported upon the progress of the women's game there in 1938: 'Perhaps the best player Australia has so far produced is Miss Dorothy Stevenson who won the Australia title in 1936 after a few months practice. Since then she has practically dropped out of the game to concentrate on lawn tennis. I should say that Miss Margot Lumb [English 5 times British Open winner] who appears to have no difficulty in combining squash and lawn tennis would beat any Australian woman without losing a point'. This, before Heather McKay, Michelle Martin, Sarah Fitz-Gerald, Rachael Grinham et al turned these comments into a footnote!

The first winner of the United States Men's National Championship was John Miskey in 1907, a title he won three times. Miskey, a doctor, was from the Overbrook Golf Club in Greater Philadelphia. Until 1990 the event was Hardball, that year switching to Softball. The Women's title was first played in 1928 when Eleanora Sears became the inaugural winner. Boston born Sears was extravagantly multi-talented, having already been US tennis champion.

World number one Jansher Khan won the 1992 Dutch Open final wearing his manager's squash shoes! The Pakistani player had his bag stolen after the semi-finals. The solution - manager Satinder Bajwa's same-size worn-in shoes were couriered over from London on the morning of the final enabling Khan to go on to defeat Australian Chris Dittmar 15-12, 15-10, 15-13. (The postscript is that the thief left the bag with everything except money in a locker at Amsterdam Station for the player to collect).

A major furore was created on 17 March 2001 when news that Peter Nicol was moving allegiance from Scotland to England reached the media. Nicol had won Commonwealth Singles Gold in 1998 and the World Open in 1999. He had been based in England for some years, and explained that the move was not about money, but support via the English World Class Performance programme. 'It has been a difficult decision for me to make but I am a professional athlete and believe I am joining the best programme there is in the World'. Under the England banner he reached the 2002 Commonwealth Games Final (losing to Canadian Jonathon Power), and was a member of the England squash which won the Men's World Team Championship in 2005.

In June 1996 the Sunday Times (UK) newspaper produced a weekly series of inserts that built up to total 1000 Makers of Sport. Each person had a photo and brief synopsis, with the squash entries mostly written by Richard Eaton. Squash was represented by Jonah Barrington, Susan Devoy, Jim Dear, Geoff Hunt, Hashim Khan, Jahangir Khan, Heather McKay, Michelle Martin and Janet Shardlow.

The 1985 South African Men's Open programme expressed a truism that losing finalists tend to be forgotten, and attempted to rectify that for the preceding ten years. An unusual but nice angle. Squash South Africa

Courts have been given the name of a local star rather than a number, but upon occasion a complete squash centre has been named or re-named to honour the achievements of a player. Here are examples:

The PIA Squash Complex in Karachi was renamed PIA Jahangir Khan Complex in 1990 after he broke Geoff Hunt's record of eight British Open wins (he won ten in all, and six World Open crowns).

When the Tauranga Squash Club in New Zealand relocated in 2011, the six court complex was re-titled Devoy Squash & Fitness Centre to acclaim Susan Devoy, four time World & eight British Open title winner.

When Pakistan Squash Federation built a regional centre in Abbottabad City in 1996 they called it Jansher Khan Squash Complex after the eight World Open title winner.

In Malaysia, the Penang International Squash Centre on the home island of Nicol David was re-named in 2010 as Nicol David International Squash Centre, recognising her successes midway through her career which eventually resulted in eight World Open titles.

That day in Boston qualification matches for the U.S. Open had been scheduled to take place at the Harvard & University Clubs, with the Boston Symphony Hall set for showcourt matches.

Tournament Director John Nimick and his Event Engine Company bounced back superbly from the inevitable postponement and the general financial and general dislocation, not only by staging the first sporting event at the Symphony Hall exactly a year later, but first by playing the September 2001 U.S. Open in January 2002 at the Sheraton Boston Grand Ballroom. 1st January 1954 saw the start of the first US Open Championship. It was open to all nationalities, amateur or professional but the draw size limited to twenty players.

British Open champions Mahmoud Karim (EGY) & Hashim Khan (PAK) travelled to the University Club in New York to play, and while the Hardball version of squash predominating in USA then was unfamiliar to them they both progressed before Karim was beaten by US Amateur champion Henri Salaun 15-9 15-1 15-5 in the semis. Khan beat Diehl Mateer in a tight semi 12-15 12-15 15-8 15-8 15-12, but lost to Salaun in the final. The scoreline was 15-7 15-12 15-14, indicating that the softball star was getting stronger as Hashim got to grips with Hardball day by day. US SQUASH

Nobody is playing Wimbledon this week, of course, but there was a time when top squash players also played competitive tennis. It is worth remembering that Raneem El Welily, who announced her retirement from the PSA Tour today while atop the world rankings, became the first Egyptian female to become world number one in any sport when she reached the top of the squash pyramid in September 2015.

El Welily, aged 31 from Alexandria had her potential recognised as early as 2004 when she was voted Tour Young Player of the Year – before she had won the World Junior title in 2005 & 2007 (during a period when it was held every two years), and British Junior Under 19 Open in January 2007 (incidentally beating future French star Camille Serme in the Final).

Winning the World Championship in Manchester in December 2017 was another high point of a career that included 24 titles including the US Open 2018.

But the high point for spectators was watching not only a hugely talented player but a supreme athlete too. And a player who looked happy going about her business, and off-court the most personable and humble person anybody could wish to meet.

World Squash Library congratulates her on a stellar career, thanks her for the pleasure she has brought to so many, and wishes Raneem and husband Tarek Momen, himself a World Champion, every happiness, health and success in the future. 11 November 1986 was a squash milestone – being the date when Ross Norman ended Jahangir Khan's 5 year 7 month unbeaten spell in the final of the World Open at the Palais Des Sports in Toulouse, France.

But three years earlier was a significant time too. The summer of 1983 was when the New Zealander wrecked his knee landing awkwardly on the edge of the runway at the end of his first ever parachute jump. He reported it as 'it felt like falling out of a two-storey building'. Having severed one ligament and displaced another it seemed unlikely that he would play again. He did, and the rest, as they say, is history!

The British Under 19 Open, informally called the Drysdale Cup after the trophy provided by RAC members in the name of Dr Theodore Drysdale who initiated the event, began in 1926. It was the unofficial Men's World Under 19 title until the World Junior Individual began in 1980.

It was won by British players until Peter Gerlow from Denmark won in April 1961 & 1962, followed in short order by Sharif Khan from Pakistan in 1963 and Indian Anil Nayar in 1965.

[Coincidentally, there are the life stories of two of the trio available: Sharif Khan (The Sheriff of Squash) and Anil Nayar (Lucky)].

For five years in the 1980s the top men professionals went to the Al Falaj Hotel in Oman to compete. For the first three years (1984,5,6) Jahangir Khan (PAK) beat Ross Norman (NZL) in each final. Fellow Pakistani Jansher Khan took over in 1987, beating Chris Dittmar (AUS) in the final, before Jahangir roared back in the last staging in 1988, beating Jansher to win a fourth title. The British Amateur Championship began in 1923, and continued until the sport went 'open' in 1980. As can be seen from the first draw it was awash with armed forces entries. The first winner was Capt Tom Jameson, an Irishman who was also a top level cricketer. He beat Capt James Palmer-Tomkinson best-of-three 17-12, 12-15, 15-0 (Hand in/hand-out to nine only started in 1927, when the title was finally won by Palmer-Tomkinson after three final losses, at the age of 47!).

Other winners included Egyptians Amr Bey & Gamal Awad, Australians Ken Hiscoe & Geoff Hunt, Jonah Barrington, Pakistanis Aftab Jawaid, Gogi Alauddin & Mohibullah Khan.

The last final on 4 February 1980 saw Jonny Leslie (Eng) beat Ross Norman (NZL) 9-3, 9-3, 9-4.

The first World Squash Awards Dinner, presented by Eventis, took place at the RAC Club in London exactly 15 years ago, on 6 May 2005. The first Players of the Year were Thierry Lincou & Vanessa Atkinson (2004 World Champions); with the Young Player awards being scooped by Raneem El Welily & James Willstrop. The full list of winners through the years is on the Library website <https://www.squashlibrary.info/.../world-squash-awards... World Squash Federation Squash - PSA World Tour>

After Andy Roddick became the first tennis player to strike a ball at 150mph, at the 2005 Canary Wharf Classic when squash ball speed was checked, John White recorded a top speed of 172 mph. And, incredibly, reached 171mph on his backhand too.

In 2011, using a special off-court radar gun at the U.S. Open, Australian Cameron Pilley reached 175mph. In 2014 Pilley pushed the record up to 177mph at an exhibition at Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, England.

An international women's league began in autumn 1989 with the English SRA Women's SuperLeague, initially featuring five clubs.

When England's Men's National League moved to a mixed team format the SuperLeague ceased.

It included top stars of the time as can be seen in the Colets side which won the first year (LtoR: Carolyn Mett, Alison Cumings, Cassie Jackman, Michelle Martin). Included in other squads amongst others were Sarah Fitz-Gerald, Sue Wright, Danielle Drady and Lisa Opie

There may not be comprehensive records of the longest doubles match, but here are a possible top two:

1. In January 1985 Jonathon Cornish & Darren Mabbs beat Christy Willstrop & Robert Forde 11-15, 15-11, 7-15, 18-14, 17-15 in the British Doubles final in a mere 2h 43m.
2. In March 2006 Campbell Grayson & Martin Knight (NZL) beat Rodney Durbach & Adrian Hansen (RSA) 9-5, 9-6, 6-9, 13-15, 9-6 in a Commonwealth Games quarter final in 2h 36m.

The 1985 match was played on a singles court, 2006 on a wider one; but since then the Doubles International Competition Width has expanded further, the tin lowered to 13"/33cm, and matches are reduced to best of three games now.

The world's most northern and southern squash courts? Well, for the north it is at Longyearbyen in the Svalbard archipelago. Well inside the Arctic Circle it is the world's northernmost town, and has one court at the town sports hall (Svalbardhallen). Longyearbyen boasts a population of humans of 2,300 – and 3,000 polar bears! The most southern is at the very bottom of South America at Ushuaia on the island of Tierra Del Fuego, where the Las Hayas Hotel has a court – one where the ceiling follows the out of court line, so lobbing is out of the question! Both were visited during the WISPA Promotional Tours of 2006 & 2007, and the height of the ceiling can be seen by the less-than-giant Rachael Grinham, Nicol David and Sarah Fitz-Gerald being able to touch it! The bidding is now open for the world's highest court. (The lowest is very easy at 3,784 m below sea level – the squash court on the Titanic!).

The first Hong Kong Open was played at the Island Squash Club in 1985, with England's Philip Kenyon prevailing over Australian Steven Bowditch - literally - in the final. Since then Pakistani star Jansher Khan boasts the most wins with eight, while Jahangir Khan never appeared in a final. Hong Kong Squash

(It was won by Sarah Fitz-Gerald who beat Michelle Martin 10-8, 9-1, 10-8 in the all-Australian final. Local media interest was considerable as squash was due to begin taking part in the Asian Games for the first time in the same city in 2002. Playing double handed has only been seen at the very top level of squash once. Englishman Peter Marshall used it throughout his career, starting out winning Under 10 age events nicknamed 'Mighty Mouse'. He did not grow out of it, being double-handed English number one for five unbroken years (1990 – Sept 1995), and World number two from Nov 94 – Sept 95.

In 1938 former British Open Champion Donald Butcher (pictured, right with fellow champion Charles Read) made a squash coaching film at the St John's Wood Club in London. Apparently the camera work was done by a club member who wished to remain anonymous!
It covered everything from grip, shots, court-craft; and instructions such as 'Keep yourself in mid-court and the ball out of it'. Unarguable logic! A film that it would be great to find.

In March 1983 at the Chichester Festival Theatre in England, Jahangir Khan beat Gamal Awad 3-1 in the then record-breaking 2h 46m Men's Chichester International Final, while Vicki Cardwell also won her 3rd title; both in the probably unique situation of the master camera filming being through the front wall. As can be seen, there was no backwall viewing for the event.

The now postponed Grasshopper Cup in Zurich, Switzerland which was due to begin today was first played in 1979. The Grasshopper Club itself dates back to 1886, with squash being added to its menu of sports in 1974 the most common explanation of the club name referring to its early footballers energetic post-goal celebrations and that their style of play was nimble and energetic!

Twelve 'squash legends' have places in the WSF Hall of Fame. While the first four pre-date the introduction of World Open, between the 12 they have won no less than 45 World Open and 90 British Open titles. Australia lead the national table with four; Pakistan are one behind on three, other countries have one representative each.

Inducted at the WSF AGM 1993:

F.D. Amr Bey – Egypt (6 British Open titles: 1933-1938)

Janet Shardlow (Morgan) - England (10 British Open titles: 1950-1959)

Hashim Khan – Pakistan (7 British Open titles: 1951-1958)

Jonah P Barrington - Ireland (6 British Open titles: 1967-1973)

Heather McKay (Blundell) - Australia (2 World & 16 British Open titles: 1962-1979)

Geoff Hunt - Australia (7 World Open/Individual & 8 British Open titles: 1967-1981)

Susan Devoy - New Zealand (4 World Open & 8 British Open titles: 1984-1992)

Jahangir Khan - Pakistan (8 World Open/Individual & 10 British Open titles: 1979-1991)

Inducted at the WSF AGM 2001:
 Michelle Martin - Australia (3 World Open & 6 British Open titles: 1993-2000)
 Jansher Khan - Pakistan (8 World Open & 6 British Open titles: 1987-2000)

Inducted at the WSF AGM 2004:
 Sarah Fitz-Gerald - Australia (5 World Open & 2 British Open titles: 1996-2002)

Inducted at the WSF AGM 2011:
 Nicol David - Malaysia (8 World Open & 5 British Open titles: 2005 - 2014)

The Women's Tour (then called WISPA) began an annual WISPA Promotional Tour initiative in 1999 to help 'younger' nations with their development and promotional efforts with two top players going to play, meet media, and generally enthuse the local squash community. The first, in Prague, Czech Republic, saw Sarah Fitz-Gerald arrive on crutches, so Natalie Grainger joined in to support Cassie Jackman on court – all seen here with Jan Koukal, (who last weekend narrowly failed to add to his 18 Czech national titles). A further 24 annual national visits followed. A donor funded the international costs each year, players gave their time without fee and the host federation covered local expenses.

The World Tour Finals began in January 1993, then generally called the Super Series Finals. Vitis Club in Schlieren/Zurich, Switzerland, hosted the first two editions, with Jansher Khan winning both. After a gap year the event began to be promoted by Satinder Bajwa from 1996. The first three years saw it staged at the Galleria Mall in Hatfield near London, before he moved it to Broadgate Arena in the City of London from 1999 – 2006. After that there was a move to Manchester in 2007, then back to Broadgate in 2008, shifting across London to Queens Club for 2009, a gap year then in 2011 at Queens with the Nick Matthew / Amr Shabana final unable to be played due to the roof of the temporary inflated arena becoming unstable in high winds. The Finals continued at Queens for 2012 & 2013, before one year at Richmond, Virginia, USA, a gap year, and 2016 – 2018 in Dubai, as the PSA World Tour Finals. Last year 6th October City in Egypt hosted the event with Karim Abdel Gawad becoming the current holder of the title. Satinder Bajwa PSA Dubai World Series Finals Squash - PSA World Tour

On the Men's side Belgian star Stefan Castelyn amassed 19 up to 2015, but is exceeded by current Isle of Man current champion Dave Norman with his 21 too.

Here are the minutes of the 1st AGM, and Women's World Ranking list from 1984.

Minutes of 1st General Meeting of the Women's International Squash Players' Group held February 26th, 1984 at Bedford Boat Club - 10.00 a.m.

Present :
 Mrs Anderson; Roger Blackwell; Carrie Clonka; Sue Coganelli;
 Susan Dewey; Diana Murray; Lisa Christie; Marlene La Mignon;
 Jan Miller; Lisa Giles; Tracey Selby; Lucy Spaulley; Shonda Thorne.

General aims of the Association were outlined, as in the constitution, and it was decided to go ahead and officially form a women's I.S.P.A. Association.

The constitution was discussed and proposed by Susan Dewey to be accepted subject to slight amendment and accepted by Sue Coganelli - accepted unanimously.

A name was discussed and the matter was deferred to later in the meeting.

Election of Officers for the Executive Committee:
 Chairwoman : Roger Blackwell.
 Secretary/Treasurer : Sue Anderson.
 Committee elected by ballot:
 Sue Coganelli,
 Shonda Thorne,
 Heather Wallace,
 (Carrie Clonka went to 1984).

Congratulations (!!) to the Executive.

An entrance fee and subscription was discussed and it was unanimously decided that the fee for 1984/85 should be set at:
 Entrance Fee = £300 or £20.
 Annual Subscription = £800 or £20.

This fee is on top of the Foundation Membership fee of $420 paid by numerous players and 2 partners.

The name of the association was agreed discussed - WISPA, (I.S.P.A. WISPA, WISPA, WISPA, WISPA) with some a/c considered. Agreement was difficult and will be later adapted subject to confirmation at the I.S.P.A. to be held at the British Open.

The meeting finished at 10.30 p.m. and the Executive Committee then met.

Recently retired Ramy Ashour had the nickname 'The Artist'. And what an artist with the racket he has been! But he is not the first player, not even the first Egyptian, to be called that. Back in 1937 this illustration of Amr Bey, six times British Open Champion (1933 – 1938) described him as an artist too. Ramy Ashour Egyptian Squash Federation - الاتحاد المصري للإسكواش

Perhaps we shall live to see a greater artist at the guise of Squash Rackets than F. D. Amr Bey, but it seems unlikely. His touch, his speed, his strokes are all perfection and his fame no matter how long after will live in the memory like the name of Grace in Cricket and of Doherty in Lawn Tennis. At present, with the exception of Doherty—a player of a very different type—he makes pygmies of us all; he strides over us, not like Gulliver certainly, but like some fantastic Pan, piping a tune that we try to follow but cannot play.

Squash evolves, the strength of nations alters. A look at the world rankings 20 years ago compared with the current one illustrates this. The millennium dominance of UK & Ireland with no less 18 players in the two top 16s has shrunk to just 5 in the January 2020 lists. Australia have dropped from 5 to zero in the period. Meanwhile Egypt have exploded from 1 to 16 and a raft of new nations have taken up the combined total of 8 countries 20 years ago to 14 now (even with the current absence of Australia, Canada, Netherlands & South Africa).

After Jahangir Khan had won the World Amateur title aged 15 he arrived in London for the (last) British Amateur having just turned 16 in January 1980 as a hot favourite. He damaged his back in practice and had to withdraw, but not before signing a programme. #jahangirkhan

15 years after tennis had its 'Battle of the Sexes' matches between Bobby Riggs and Billy Jean King, squash had its own one in 1987. Susan Devoy, who had already won 3 of her 8 British Open titles took on 14 year old Simon Parke. It was arranged as a winner-takes-all match at the Oasis Club in Marlow, England (Devoy's base). Parke came into it having beaten British Women's champion Lisa Opie five times in a row, and amidst extensive publicity a sell-out crowd, themselves betting on the outcome, packed in to watch. The match lasted 70 minutes and saw Parke winning the 1st & 3rd games comfortably before Kiwi Devoy levelled up. Sensing her opportunity, she dropped and drove towards a final scoreline of 3-9, 9-6, 1-9, 9-6, 9-4.

Her post-match comment was telling, 'One for the women, but only just in time. I would not be able to beat him this time next year'. Parke gracefully said 'I thought she was great before we started. Now I know for sure'.

Devoy went back to completing her stellar career against women, while Parke went on to win the World Junior title in 1990 and reach a career-high world ranking at 3.

Go back 15 years to 2005, and some familiar names were competing in the British Junior Open which begins today. But what is striking is that on the male side Pakistan were dominating, winning three of the four titles and Runner Up in the other. Last year no Pakistani players reached a final, with Egypt dominating. Malaysia did win three younger titles so perhaps a sign of an increasing challenge from them and elsewhere for the next few years. Here is how it went in 2005. Two current pairs of married squash stars are Tarek Momen / Raneem El Welily & Ali Farag / Nour El Tayeb of course but these Egyptian couples are not the first to both win titles. Women's World Open Champion in 1981 Rhonda Thorne and husband Ross Thorne were Australians doing the same. They have both held the Australian and South African Open crowns, amongst others, for example. Other married holders of international titles to add?

The Men's World Team Championships are taking place in Washington this week, but earlier, in 1984 and 1986, the 2nd & 4th US National Squash Championships also took place in DC. The latter even had a message from then Vice President George Bush (Snr) in the program. US SQUASHWSF Men's World Team Squash Championship

In 1949 New Haven, USA, ran an event to coincide with the British Women's Team being Stateside for the Wolfe-Noel International Challenge.

The report from the Boston Daily Globe shows how Janet Morgan (who later married and became Shardlow) struggled with the narrower courts.

Britain's Janet Morgan New Sensation on U.S. Squash Courts

By ERNIE ROBERTS

A 28-year-old physical education teacher from Surrey, England, has caught on to the American "angle" in squash racquet play and is beating us on our home courts.

Dark-haired Janet Morgan is the visiting lady who took just two weeks to assimilate the difference between American and English squash racquets. Last weekend she taught a couple of seasons' hiatus when she defeated Betty and Peggy Howe two of the "Gulf States" better players, and became the New England Women's champion.

"It was a matter of adjusting ourselves to the style of American-style play," explained Janet on behalf of the six English players who are here for the national tourney and the Wolfe-Noel Cup matches next week in Philadelphia.

"Your courts are low and one-half feet narrower than ours. And the English ball is smaller, softer, more spongy. We depend upon a court-covering game, rather than a power game. We run more instead of hitting the ball as hard as the American girls."

On the narrow American courts the ball angles back from corner shots differently. Janet's shooting strategy, which won her Number Two ranking in England, didn't work here, and she lost to Dr. Howe twice in the Connecticut and New York State championships before reaching the N. E. U. C.

Miss Morgan has been playing competitive matches for just three years. But she has won the South-East, South of England and Surrey titles. For the past two seasons she has reached the finals of the English Rackets and the Four Courts Cup titles.

"There is more interest in squash each year than ever before. We have 17 clubs competing in our district."

The entry deadline for the British Junior Open is tomorrow, while for the 1926 boys Championship entries closed nearly a century ago! The entry fee was 12.5p ($0.15/€0.14)! This was the first time that the U19 trophy was named the Drysdale Cup – named after Dr Theodore Drysdale, an RAC Club member who led the initiation of the event but died from a mosquito bite going septic in late 1925.
