In addition to the player profiles for the 1st Women's Open in 1976, the event programme carried a two page article by renowned British journalist Rex Bellamy assessing the importance of the introduction of a women's world title while casting his eye over players. See it at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/general-resources> on the Squash Library website. World Squash Federation See less

The programme for the first Women's World Open in Brisbane fifty years ago in 1976 accorded Heather McKay a full page profile. She would win this event and the second edition in 1979 before retiring. Heather McKay
M.B.E.

Heather McKay was born Heather Blundell, on July 31, 1941, in Queanbeyan, N.S.W. and is one of eleven children.

Heather first started playing squash in 1959, to keep fit for hockey, which she also excelled at, but gained her first squash tournament in 1960 when she won the N.S.W. Country Junior Girls' Title along with the Women's Amateur Title. Her next successes were the N.S.W. Junior Girls' Championship and the Australian Women's Amateur Championship also in 1960. Then from 1961 to 1973 inclusive Heather held the N.S.W., Victorian and Australian Women's Amateur Championships.

Heather went to Britain in 1962 for the first time and won the British Women's Championship by defeating Fran Marshall and has continued this visit each year and now has 15 successive British Titles to her credit, along with numerous other Titles both in Australia and overseas.

Heather came to live in Sydney in 1961, to help improve her squash and be coached by the top Professionals available, and took up a position as a Receptionist at Bellevue Hill Squash Courts, where she was also under the watchful and very helpful eyes of Kay and Richard Mansfield. It was in Sydney she met and later married Brian McKay in December, 1965.

In 1967, Heather was named Australian Sportswoman of the Year, won a Willis' Award and a Lindy Award in 1968, named Calles Sportswoman of the Year, 1969, and also the Courage Award in 1971, but the greatest honour of all was the awarding of the M.B.E. in January, 1969 for her remarkable services to squash for Australia.

Squash has taken Heather around the world and now to Canada where she and Brian are the resident coaches at the Toronto Squash Club, a position taken up in June, 1975. The Club has 14 squash courts, a large gymnasium, spa pool, indoor running track, sauna baths and a licensed restaurant for over 1,200 members.

Heather McKay, through her great efforts and achievements in Squash throughout the world, has become a household name. She has been a tremendous ambassador for Australia and has given all her support and encouragement to men, women and children to play the game as it should be played, in a very sports-like manner.

Another five Australians come together on this player profile page for the first Women's World Open in 1976, including Rhonda Shapland, who as married Rhonda Thorne would win the title five years later. Missing is Heather McKay, See her full page programme profile tomorrow. Squash AustraliaWorld Squash Federation See less

50 years ago today (20 Dec 1975) Australian Kevin Shawcross, aged 27, beat Ali Aziz from Egypt 9-2 9-7 9-6 to win the British Amateur Championship at Wembley Squash Centre. Various stories of his riotous off-court life abound. Built like a rugby player, a sport he tried but came to an end due to a knee injury, he was a talented and disciplined player. Soon after he was to turn professional, as did Aziz. Shawcross (pictured) sadly passed away only 12 years later in 1987.

SQUASH WORLD CUP RULE CHANGES

	Current	Pre-2023
Competition Format	Round robin pool Stage, followed by a knockout Stage	Round robin pool Stage, followed by a knockout Stage
Team Composition	teams of two men and two women	teams of two men and one woman
Playing Order	Woman #2, Man #1, Woman #1, Man #2 OR Man #2, Woman #1, Man #1, Woman #2 by coin toss	#1 Man, Women's, #2 Men's.
Match Scoring	All matches played best of 5 games to 7 points. At 6-6, the game still played to 7 points.	All matches 5 games PAR scoring to 11 points.
Tie Scoring	Finishing positions in pools will be determined by total matches accrued across all ties in that pool, e.g. a 4-0 result scores 4 to the winner and 0 to the losing team; a tie (2-2) accrues 2 matches each. If two or more teams have equal total matches, finishing positions will be determined first by the head-to-head result between teams and if still equal by games differential and then points differential. If still equal, then by coin toss. At stage 2 (knock-out), in the event of a 2-2 draw, the winner will be determined by games differential and if still equal by points differential across the four matches in the tie. If still equal the result will be determined by the head-to-head result of the first match played in the tie.	The final order decided, - first by greater number of ties won - if 2 teams still equal, then the result between the teams - if 3 or more teams have won the same number of ties, then by the greater number of matches won - if 2 teams still equal, then by result between the 2 teams - if 3 or more teams still equal, then by greater positive difference between games won and lost - if 2 teams still equal, then by result between the 2 teams - if 3 or more teams still equal, then by greater positive difference between points won and lost - if 2 teams still equal, then by result between the 2 teams - if 3 or more teams still equal, then by lottery.

The 24th Annual General Meeting of the World Squash Federation in Guernsey unanimously re-elected HRH Prince Imran (Malaysia) as President for a third term. The 3 Vice-Presidents of the Federation Susie Simcock (New Zealand), Bob Finch (Australia) and Philip van der Ven (Netherlands) were also returned for further 2 year terms.

The meeting voted to increase the maximum number of teams allowed to compete in World Championships from 24 to 32 and restructured the format to allow the top 16 teams to be seeded into potential winning positions. In future, specialist seeding committees will be utilised to place teams in the draw, overcoming the seeding problems which disrupted the Men's Championship in Karachi last year. Prince Imran said: "The dramatic growth of Squash in Africa and South America has placed enormous pressure on the WSF to admit more nations to our Team Championships. The welcome and overwhelming support for our motion to increase to 32 teams reflects the increased voting power of these newer Squash nations."

Two contested bids for future championships were decided when Egypt won the right to host the 1996 World Junior Men's event and Malaysia defeated the Netherlands in the ballot for the 1997 Men's World Open & World Team Championships.

The meeting reconfirmed that the Federation's most important objective is to gain entry to the Olympic programme and committed maximum efforts to the campaign to be present in Sydney in the year 2000.

1992 was a key year for South African squash. South Africa had voluntarily suspended its membership of the world body in the interest of unity of the Federation and to support squash's Olympic aspirations, but on 21 February 1992 a unified Squash South Africa was created. Three months later on 29 May the country was re-admitted to the ISRF (now WSF). Then, in August that year it sent a team to Hong Kong to participate in the men's World Juniors to end the hiatus. Here is that World Junior 1992 squad. Squash South AfricaWorld Squash Federation

Squash Library has been seeking out past World Masters results to add to www.squashinfo.com on behalf of WSF. Anybody wanting to see past results can do so generally from the last 16 round for each age group for every year. However, there are still some results missing so this is an appeal to send them to me: andrew@squashlibrary.info if you have them please. Specifically, for 1993 (Edinburgh) and 2006 (Cape Town), only the quarter finals onwards have been added, so last 16 round results would be welcomed. But the real priority is 1995 (Melbourne) where only the final results have been sourced. Any and all missing results welcomed, please.

However, in the two all-Egyptian finals, an eighth win for Nour ElSherbini would take her alongside current title record holder Nicol David (MAS). Meanwhile, a fifth crown for Ali Farag would move him ahead of fellow Egyptian Amr Shabana and Australian Geoff Hunt into solo third spot on the all-time list. The second men's World Open in 1977 was the first stand-alone event - the inaugural title the year before being added for the British Open winner. Originally scheduled to take place in Sydney, it was relocated to another Australian city – Adelaide. Played October 11 to 22 at the Brahma Lodge Squash Centre, Uniroyal sponsored the event with AS40,000 (£26,000) in prize money - the richest offered in the history of squash at that point. Ten years ago (Birmingham 2012) saw the first playing of the Men's Over 80 age category of the World Masters. England's Lance Kinder is the holder [pic, centre with, left, Edward Burlingame (USA, silver) and Stanley Fanaroff (RSA, Bronze)] winning in 2018 in Charlottesville, USA when aged 82. Also winner of the British Open Over 80 crown, he has agitated for the introduction of an Over 85 band – so far without success.
Starting squash aged 40 after boxing for the RAF, the late starter rose rapidly, and even a heart attack in his 60s did not slow him down. But an on-court fall means the 86 year old could not defend his title at the World Masters this week. Egypt is synonymous with event hosting, currently in El Gouna, but World Federation founder members Egypt had hoped to host their first world championship – the world Amateur Team & Individual – back in 1979. However, while finances were no problem the lack of facilities prevented it. The National Stadium courts (below) would come on stream two years later so the first of the current 13 World Championship stagings in Egypt was the Men's Teams in 1985. Uniquely, the Men's World Open and Team Championships 1987 involved chartering a train! The World Open was played in Birmingham, England, with the team Championship following in London.

Because of the numbers involved, rather than hiring a fleet of coaches to transport the team members and officials by coach, an InterCity train was arranged to take everybody from Birmingham to the newly opened Kensington Olympia station, close to the London Championship hotel.

The maximum number of national teams who have been able to play in a World Team Championship is 32, more entries meaning regional qualification is required. (Entries & results at <https://www.squashlibrary.info/world-championships>). The maximum has not been exceeded but The Men's has reached 32 on three occasions: 1995 – Cairo, Egypt, 1997 – Petaling Jaya, Malaysia and 2011 – Paderborn, Germany. (The first staging in Melbourne, Australia in 1967 featured six nations).

The Women's highest entry was 26 nations at the 2012 edition in Nimes, France; after also starting with six at the debut event in Birmingham, England in 1979.

P. NUMBERS OF TEAMS AND FORMATS

P1. A maximum of 32 MNFs will qualify to provide teams for a World Team Championship: 17 MNFs (including the Host) will qualify for places on the basis of their final placement in the preceding similar World Team Championship; the remaining 15 places will be allocated to the five WSF Regional Federations as follows:

Africa	2 places
Asia	4 Places
Europe	4 Places
Oceania	1 Place
Pan-America	4 Places

These places will be determined by each Regional Federation either by results from existing Regional Team Championships played between teams of players representing the competing MNFs (preferably three-person teams) or, where this is inappropriate, by separate play-offs within the Region. If any Region fails to take up its quota, the WSF Championships Commission will decide on substitute(s).

THE MEN WHO HAVE REACHED THE PINNACLE – SQUASH'S WORLD TEAM CHAMPIONS

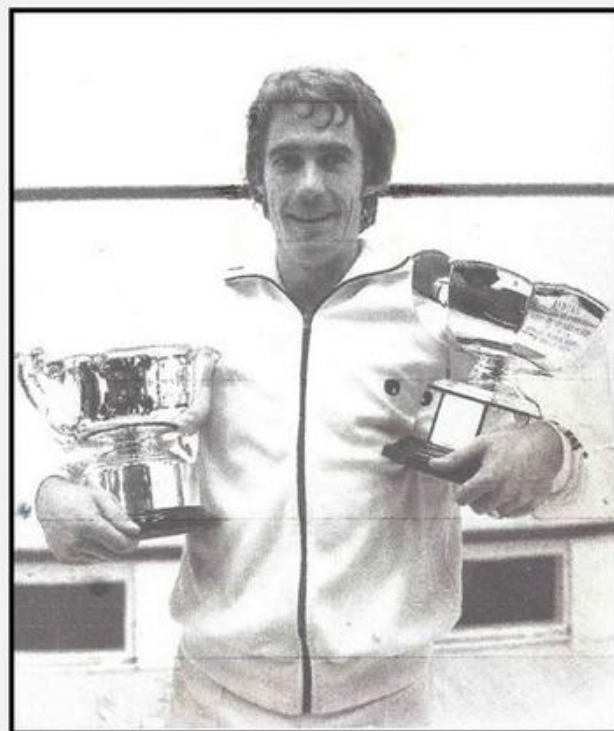

The first Men's World Open was not played as a separate event – the World Federation agreed in 1975 that the winner of the 1976 British Open would be awarded the world title too.

It was played at the Wembley Squash Centre in London, 31 Jan – 9 Feb 1976, and 2nd seed Australian Geoff Hunt beat 4th ranked Mohibullah Khan 7-9, 9-4, 8-10, 9-2, 9-2 in the final. The 130 minute match was the longest recorded at that point. Two other Pakistanis, Qamar Zaman & Gogi Alauddin were seeded 1 & 3 respectively. Hunt (pictured with the two trophies) went on to win the next three World Open titles too, beating Qamar Zaman in each final.

When World Championships began the host nation chose which ball would be used. That ended after the Swedish hosts of the World Juniors in 1980 decided on the green 'general use' ball (1980 ad here), much to the shock of players & managers. Since then Since then an 'adopted' World Championship Ball has been designated.

FULL MARKS

The Dunlop Black. The official SRA ball. Chosen for the World Open in Toronto, it's made its mark in more championships than any other ball in the world.

The Dunlop Green. As close as you can get to championship standard, in a ball that so seldom makes its mark, you can use it on any court in the country.

Although World Squash Championships have been held in all the five global squash regions, the first held in mainland China was the WSF Women's World Team event in 2018. I was held 11 - 16 September in the city of Dalian.

It took place at the Xigang Stadium, home of a squash centre with four permanent all-glass courts made by the Chinese CGG court company.

For the event a further two showcourts were erected in the sport hall - making it unique in using six glass showcourts for an event! World Squash Federation

The format of World Team Championships now mean that ordinarily a nation plays a maximum of seven ties. But go back to October 1987 where the entry for the Men's World Team Championship in England was eight more than the previous record, the format meant that 20 nations were given direct access into initial pools, joined by four qualifiers from the two preliminary pools of four teams. The winners went straight through but the second & third in the pools had a playoff tie.

After six team pools, the final stage was 1 – 8, 9 – 16 and 17 – 24 places. This meant that Norway, and Kuwait who succeeded in the preliminary pools after playoffs had played a total of 12 times. And only two players – Norway's Johan Abyholm (left) and Kuwaiti Tariq Al-Oweish, featured in all 12. For the record, Abyholm won 8, while Al-Oweish won 2.

11 November 1986 was a squash milestone – being the date when Ross Norman ended Jahangir Khan's 5year 7month unbeaten spell in the final of the World Open at the Palais Des Sports in Toulouse, France.

But three years earlier was a significant time too. The summer of 1983 was when the New Zealander wrecked his knee landing awkwardly on the edge of the runway at the end of his first ever parachute jump. He reported it as 'it felt like falling out of a two-storey building'. Having severed one ligament and displaced another it seemed unlikely that he would play again. He did, and the rest, as they say, is history!

For every World Open winner there is a final loser too. The record of number of finals reached without a win goes to two great players who were very unlucky not to have won a 'worlds'. Australian Chris Dittmar with five, losing four times to Jansher Khan, (87, 89 in pic, 90 & 92) and once to Jahangir Khan (84). Natalie Grinham lost three finals under the Australian flag Vanessa Atkinson (04), Nicol David (06) and sister Rachael (07); and one to David (09) as a Dutch player.

When Jonathon Power beat Peter Nicol 3-1 to win the World Open in Qatar in 1998 the Canadian became the first and so far only Pan-American man or woman to win the World Championship. The region has done better in the Juniors though, with Amanda Sobhy (USA, 2010) and Diego Elias (Peru, 2014 & 2015) winning World Junior individual titles. The first Men's World Open took place in 1976, not separately but as a joint title with the British Open – as a month before the start the sponsorship had not been found to fund the prize money. At that point a chance meeting between Jonah Barrington and an executive from British automotive company Lucas Industries led to a last-minute rescue enabling Australian Hunt to beat Pakistani Mohibullah Khan in the final 7/9, 9/4, 8/10, 9/2, 9/2 to win the first of his three World Opens (after previously winning three World Amateur crowns).

Jansher Khan holds the record for Men's World Championship titles, with 8, two ahead of fellow Pakistani Jahangir Khan. His first was in 1987 in England, the last in his own country, in Karachi, in 1996. He only lost one final, to Jahangir in 1988 in Amsterdam, though his run was also interrupted in 1991 in Adelaide, Australia, when Rodney Martin beat Jahangir in the final, having beaten Jansher in the quarters. With Egypt seeded one and hot favourites to retain the WSF Men's World Team Championship this month their path towards dominance may be relatively short, but is clear.

It started with the Junior Men's in 1994 when Egypt won their first ever team title led by Ahmed Barada & Omar Elborolossy. (All are biennial and this one has been won six times).

Juniors moved up and after the first Men's won on home ground in 1999, four of these titles have been won in all – but with England proving to be a stumbling block with three of their own during this period.

The same pattern was followed on the female side with the juniors coming first. After a first title in 1999 the girls have eight in total including the last six.

The Egyptian Women's team took their first title in 2008 and have four titles in all.

The Land of The Pharaohs currently hold all four major World Team titles.

So far, no less than 31 countries have hosted WSF World Team Championships Senior & Junior (so not including World Individuals, Masters, Doubles).

The leader-board of events:

New Zealand, 8

Australia, 7

Canada / Egypt / England, all 6

New Zealand is also joint-top the chart of most cities used, along with England & Canada, all 5:

- Canada (Calgary, Edmonton, Niagara, Toronto, Vancouver). First one in 1977, pictured.

- England (Birmingham, Brighton, Guernsey, London, Sheffield)

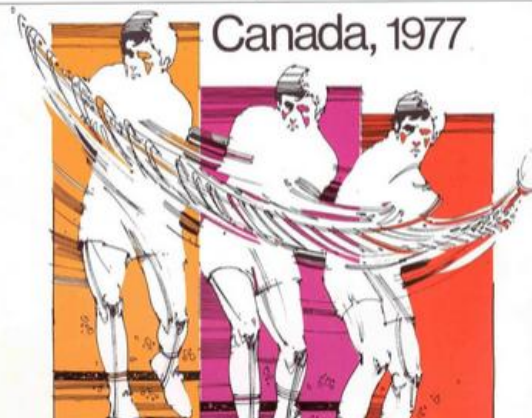

- New Zealand (Auckland, Christchurch, Hamilton, Palmerston North, Tauranga)

When it comes to the single city that has hosted most of these events, Cairo with 6 tops the list, followed by Chennai with 4. (But if other World / Regional events are added, The Squash Academy in Chennai would be the overall most prolific host city). The Men's World Championship starting today in Qatar is the fifth held there. The first in Doha was in 1998 and saw Canadian Jonathon Power win the title, beating Peter Nicol (Scotland at that point, later England) 15-17, 15-7, 15-9, 15-10.

It was Power's one World title – with Nicol winning his own single one a year later after two R/Ups.

France's Thierry Lincou won the 2nd in Qatar in 2004 and Ramy Ashour took the third and fourth for Egypt in 2012 and 2014. PSA World Champ... See more
